A modern Universal Exposition well might be called an encyclopedia of society, as it contains, in highly specialized array, society's words and works. It is a collection of the wisdom and achievements of the world, brought together for the inspection of the world—for examination and study by its experts. It constitutes a compact, classified, indexed compendium, available for ready reference, of the achievements and ideas of society, in all phases of its activities, extending to the most material as well as to the most refined.

The Catalogue of such a Universal Exposition is, therefore, perhaps the most comprehensive and representative contemporary record of the progress and condition of the human race that may be devised. It is a succinct and authentic record of the exhibits of the Exposition, which are the evidences of the capacity and performance in all lines, intellectual, social and industrial, of all the peoples of the world. The value of such a document and its significance, socially and commercially, are incalculable. It is an epitome of the capacity and promises of mankind; while being at the same time a roll of honor—a certified register of those individuals and institutions which are taking active part in the life of the world to-day.

INTRODUCTION.

The importance of transportation as a factor in the progress of civilization has been recognized by the Exposition by making the Palace of Transportation the most expensive of all its temporary buildings, and by giving it a prominent central location. The Transportation Palace covers nearly sixteen acres of ground, and is architecturally appropriate and impressive. With its immense arches and numerous tracks, it has much the appearance of a mammoth railway station.

By the plan of installation the railway tracks and exhibits occupy a rectangle the center of the building, nearly 1,000 feet long and 300 feet wide. The space surrounding this on four sides is about 100 feet wide, with a total length on the four sides of about 3,200 feet; and is devoted to marine exhibits, and vehicles for use on ordinary roads, such as carriages, automobiles, etc.

The principal foreign countries occupying space are Germany, France, Great Britain, Japan and Mexico. Germany especially has a varied and interesting railway exhibit, including six locomotives. In addition, Germany has installed, just north of the Forestry, Fish and Game Palace, an outdoor exhibit illustrating the most modern railway equipment for signaling and switching. The other foreign railway exhibits are mostly in the shape of models, but are exceedingly interesting in showing the progress and advancement of railroad equipment.

Great Britain and Mexico both give interesting displays in saddlery and harness. France has an exhibit of the latest improved automobiles and motor vehicles.

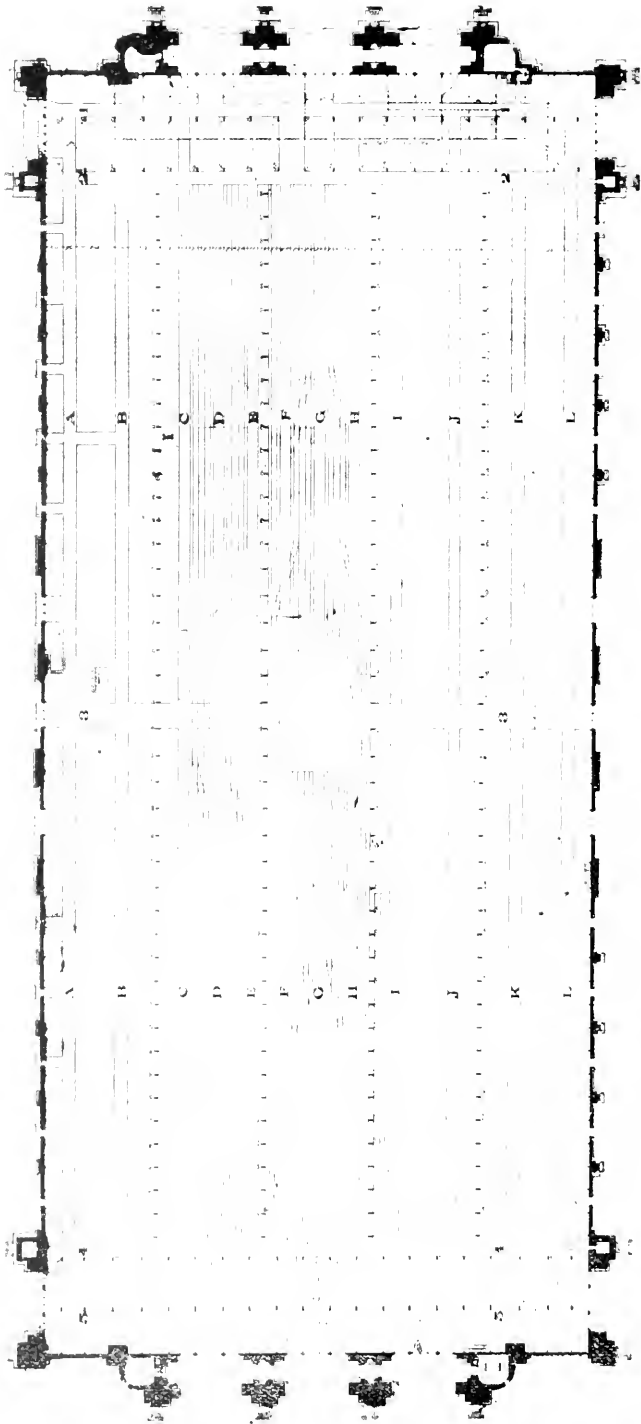

The "Spirit of the Twentieth Century" is the legend that attracts the eye at the entrance of every one entering the building. It is found in the center and represented by a huge and constantly revolving steel turntable bearing a giant, modern, up-to-date locomotive, whose own wheels revolve at a speed equal to eighty miles an hour running on a track. This is the piece de resistance in the Transportation Palace, and illustrates modern railway locomotion brought to twentieth century perfection.

Harking back to the earliest history of railway development, and then coming down to the wonderful equipment of today, there is a special historical exhibit which is illustrative in so broad a scope as to take in interesting contributions from all parts of the world. With the great collection which has been preserved in the Field Columbian Museum at Chicago as a basis, this special historical exhibit contains additional relics from all quarters of the globe, thereby illustrating the history of the railway in a manner thoroughly practical and instructive, and at the same time as fascinating as a romance.

An entirely new feature of exposition work is the locomotive tests conducted at a special plant costing $200,000. All leading types of American locomotives are to be tested during the seven months of the Exposition, and experts are employed to test and compute the results, which are bulletined daily and published on the close of each test.

In the marine exhibits are models of every craft, from the great ocean steamship to the small boat. Even the latest invention, the automobile boat, is on exhibition.

The evolution in aerial navigation is recognized by the Exposition through the Transportation Department, under the supervision of which take place the races with dirigible airships over an aeronautic concourse. The grand prize is $50,000. Other prizes for both airships and spherical balloons aggregate $50,000. It is expected from these races in the way of stimulating the science of aerial navigation.

Ground Plan, Palace of Transportation, Showing Exhibit Locations.

HOW TO LOCATE AN EXHIBIT.

IN the Transportation Palace exhibits are located by aisles and post numbers. Each post has its number. The north side of the building is devoted to the domestic exhibits in Groups 72 and 73. In the east half of the north side are the exhibits of automobiles, from manufacturers in the United States. The exhibit of Mexico is also on that side of the building. Next to the automobile section is that of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, with the historical display of locomotives. France occupies the southeast section of the Palace. Next to France, on the south central side, comes Germany. West of Germany are the exhibits of Great Britain and Ireland, and in the southwest section of the Palace are the transportation exhibits of Japan. The Marine section is installed in the west end, near the French exhibits. Through the center of the building, from east to west, are the exhibits of locomotives, railway appliances, the historical exhibit showing peculiar methods of transportation used in various countries, the exhibit of Brazil, and the testing plant for locomotives. To find an exhibitor, note the post number and aisle and the exact position of the exhibit in the building will be at once ascertained.

PREFACE.

A modern Universal Exposition well might be called an encyclopedia of society, as it contains, in highly specialized array, society's words and works. It is a collection of the wisdom and achievements of the world, brought together for the inspection of the world—for examination and study by its experts. It constitutes a compact, classified, indexed compendium, available for ready reference, of the achievements and ideas of society, in all phases of its activities, extending to the most material as well as to the most refined.

The Catalogue of such a Universal Exposition is, therefore, perhaps the most comprehensive and representative contemporary record of the progress and condition of the human race that may be devised. It is a succinct and authentic record of the Exhibits of the Exposition, which are the evidences of the capacity and performance in all lines, intellectual, social and industrial, of all the peoples of the world. The value of such a document, and its significance socially and commercially, are incalculable. It is an epitome of the capacity and promise of mankind; while being at the same time a roll of honor—a certified register of those individuals and institutions which are taking active part in the life of the world to-day.

PALACE OF AGRICULTURE.

INTRODUCTION.

Installation of Exhibits in the Palace of Agriculture.

By Frederic W. Taylor, Chief of Department.

The Palace of Agriculture presents a systematic arrangement of exhibits pertaining to Agriculture as set forth in the groups and classes enumerated in the official classification, beginning with farm implements and agricultural implements and farm machinery, and approximately one-fourth of the area of the building is devoted to exhibits of this character, including appliances of irrigation and draining lands and every known agricultural implement, machine or tool which has been built by the ingenuity of our American manufacturers for the purpose of expediting and lightening the work of the American farmer. These exhibits are of the most interesting and instructive character, and beside the new things it is well to allude to the fact that a historical collection is also shown where the evolution of farm implements may be studied. All of these features are of extreme interest and importance in their bearing upon agriculture in the United States, promising greater results through improved methods in the future. In addition to this, some fertilizer exhibits are included which are instructive in showing the most economical as well as practical method of feeding growing crops.

The next group pertains to tobacco. Here again the most exhaustive treatment has been applied. Aside from the exhibits of the weed which is made by the several States in their spaces, the great central tobacco feature is really an epitome on the subject in the United States, showing the products of each of the States which grow tobacco on a commercial scale as well as manufactured articles. The local characteristics of the production of the leaf in the several States is fully shown. The methods for curing, handling and marketing it are also set forth. The exhibits include working the leaf in its various forms for chewing, smoking, etc.

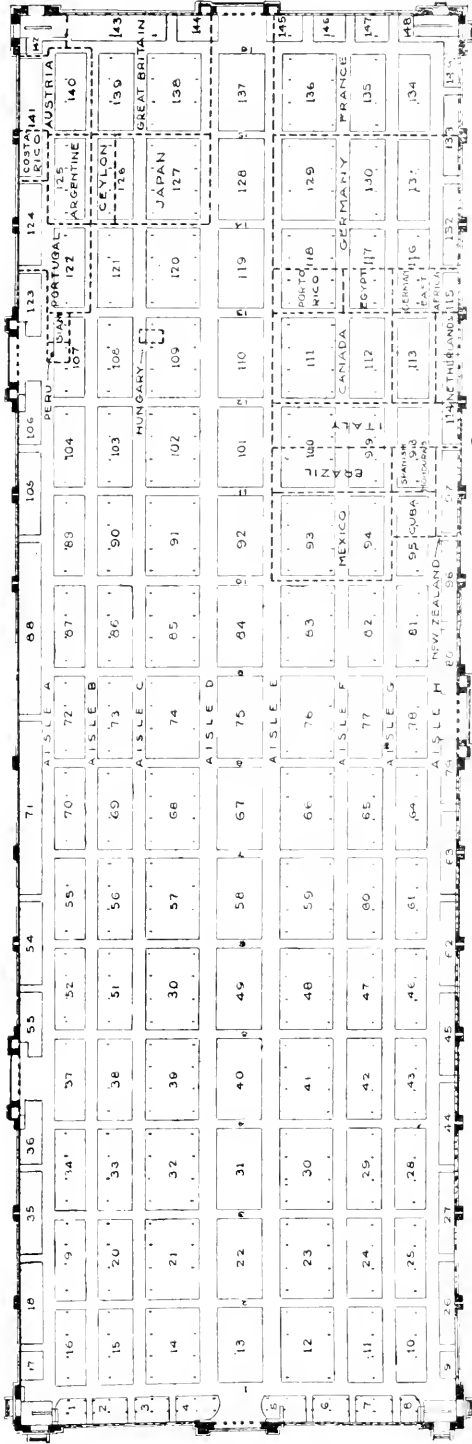

The appliances and methods used in Agricultural industries are also exemplified in the special cotton exhibit, which, like tobacco, finds representation not only in the States which produce cotton, but in the special feature in the center of the building, which is intended to convey to the visitor a complete synopsis of the production of cotton from the seed to its delivery at the mill door. This exhibit includes cotton seed, its products and by-products, which are scientifically brought out and will be the first presentation of cotton in all of its forms and participated in by the States which produce it ever shown to the public. The theory of Agriculture is also looked after by several of the leading States, including Pennsylvania, Wisconsin, Wyoming and California.

Vegetable and Animal food products, methods employed in the production of foods, farinaceous products, bread and pastry, form the most interesting group, and those which appeal most to the housewife and those who are studying Domestic Economy. This section is filled with the most interesting features which the age produces. The cereals, their products and by-products afford a rich study. Here again corn has been specialized, and the central feature has been made to show the grains grown in each of the States of the United States. This comprehensive exhibit of corn includes not only examples of corn grown in each of the States, but it reaches out into the heart of the matter, beginning with the planting of the grain, its cultivation, its harvesting and its manufacture into all of the commercial forms which are known as products and by-products, including starch, glucose, gum, dextrine, anhydrous and grape sugar, syrup, corn oil, corn rubber, corn oil cake, corn oil meal, gluten meal, canned corn; breakfast foods like grits, samp, hominy, malt, whiskey, beer, dry wines, alcohol, fusil oil, and then the stock foods from the grain and from the stalk, as stover, ensilage, shucks, fodder and cobs. All of these products are shown in juxtaposition with the corn, and form a group which is engaging the attention not only of the scientific world, but of every producer in the land. This same treatment is given to cane and beet sugars and sorghums. The processes of their culture, the harvesting and conversion into syrups and sugar are fully shown in the special feature in the central bay. Animal foods refrigerated, dried, pickled and fresh are also fully exploited and special attention is given to milk, butter and cheese exhibits, which are grouped together. Here will be found examples made in the various butter producing States and cheese in each of its forms from all of the cheese-making States is also shown in refrigerated cases. The process for handling milk for making butter and cheese is also shown in the Model Dairy, as well as by private exhibits, showing the tools and appliances for the handling of milk and its manufacture into its products, for pasteurizing and sterilizing milk. In addition to this the methods employed in the preparation of foods, of farinaceous products and the manufacture of bread and pastry is also fully shown, including bakeries, kneading machines, ovens, pastry works, flour from all kinds of cereals, groats, potato starch, flour from lentils, gluten, prepared cereals and every other form of food which comes under the comprehensive classification of these groups.

The presentation of meats, fish, vegetables and fruits is another very interesting and instructive group. The process of cartons or carriers, and the labels are all most graphically presented, and this applies as well to sugar in its manufactured forms as: confectionery, chocolate, brandied fruits and the condiments and relishes for the table are also shown, together with spices and peppers.

Another section is devoted to everything to drink. This section will, of course, include all of the syrups and liqueurs, fermented beverages, wines, brandies and artificial waters. It is a very interesting group, and has heretofore been classed with Horticulture. It is all found in Agriculture, and makes a most interesting display. In addition to this will be found inedible Agricultural Products, the textile plants, cotton, flax, hemp in the straw, oil-producing plants and all the useful things which go into the manufactures. And the last group, which will be of interest especially to the farmers and orchardists, treats of insects, their products, and plant diseases, insect pests of crops other than fruit, as well as fruits, are shown. Also the insects which are useful to the farmer.

AGRICULTURE BUILDING

GROUND PLAN PALACE OF AGRICULTURE.

How to Locate an Exhibit.

The Palace of Agriculture, a ground plan of which accompanies this catalogue, is arranged in blocks, with aisles, like the squares and streets of a well-planned city. Aisles are lettered and numbered. Blocks are numbered and over each block is suspended a large sign which indicates the number of the block beneath. In every case possible in the catalogue the location of the domestic exhibitor by block and aisle is given. Location of state and foreign exhibits are given by block and aisle boundaries.

The 20th Century Sanitary Fountain is the only absolutely sanitary soda fountain in the world. For this reason it was selected by the U. S. Government for soldier barracks. Because it safeguards the health of soda drinkers and because of the complete application of 20th century ideas, it is the only logical choice of all careful investigators.

PREFACE.

A modern Universal Exposition well might be called an encyclopedia of society, as it contains, in highly specialized array, society's words and works. It is a collection of the wisdom and achievements of the world, brought together for the inspection of the world, for examination and study by its experts. It constitutes a compact, classified, indexed compendium available for ready reference of the achievements and ideas of society in all phases of its activities, extending to the most material as well as to the most refined.

The Catalogue of such a Universal Exposition is, therefore, perhaps the most comprehensive and representative contemporary record of the progress and condition of the human race that may be devised. It is a succinct and authentic record of the exhibits of the Exposition, which are the evidences of the capacity and performance in all lines, intellectual, social and industrial, of all of the peoples of the world. The value of such a document and its significance, socially and commercially, are incalculable. It is an epitome of the capacity and promises of mankind, while being at the same time a roll of honor—a certified register of those individuals and institutions which are taking active part in the life of the world to-day.

Director of Exhibits.

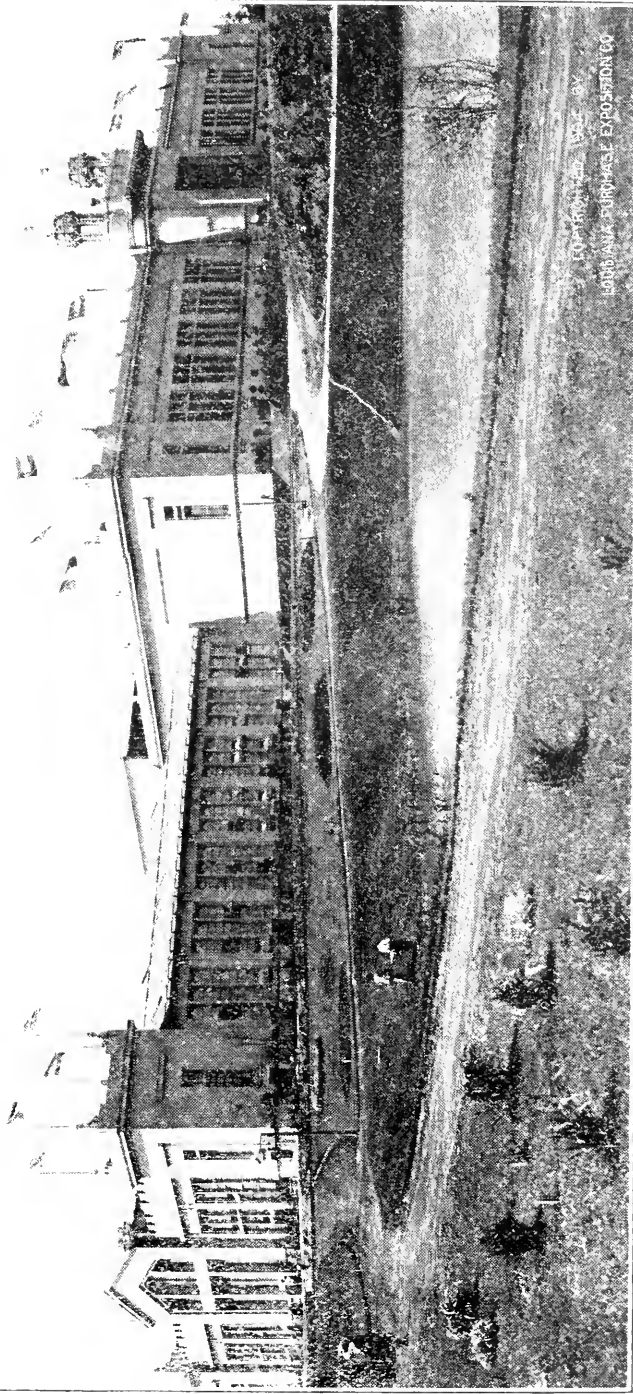

INTRODUCTION.

INSTALLATION OF EXHIBITS, DEPARTMENT OF HORTICULTURE.

BY FREDERIC W. TAYLOR, CHIEF OF DEPARTMENT.

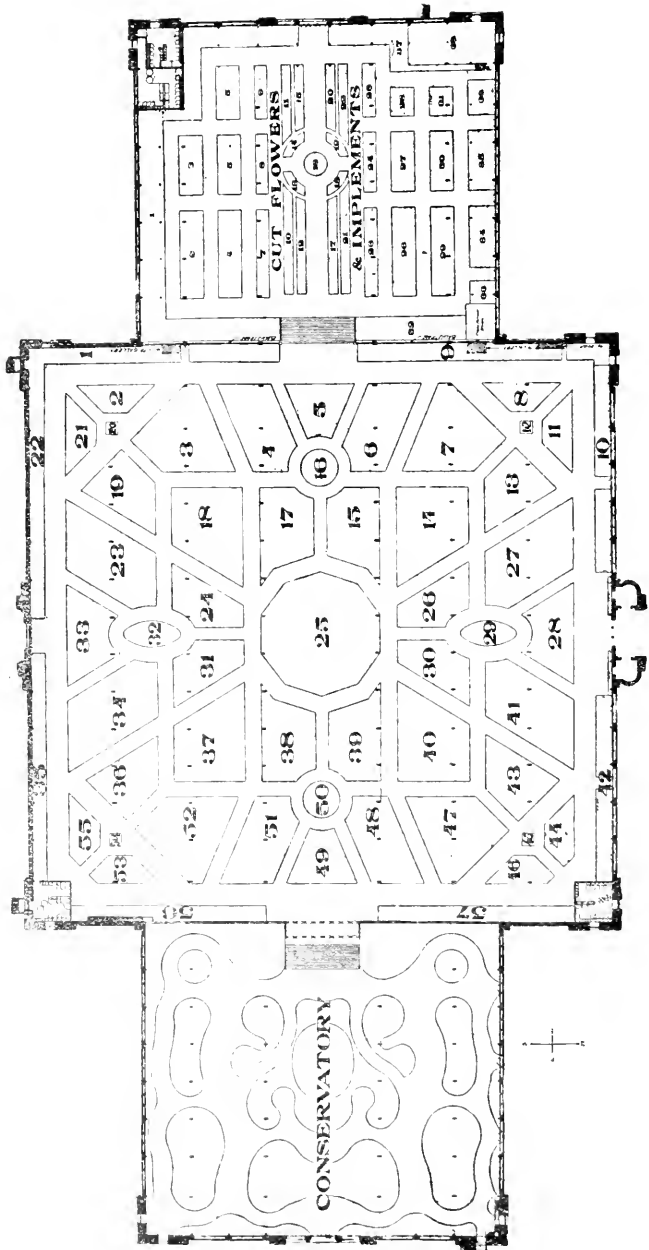

The installation in Horticulture is different from that undertaken at any other Exposition. The central portion of the Palace of Horticulture is reserved for low or table exhibits. This is 200 feet square. The other installation is high and ornamental and surrounds the central feature, the effect being that the whole center of the structure, comprising four acres presents to the visitor one mass of fruit, the greatest collection ever seen in America. The orchardist and fruit grower is particularly interested in a series of exhibits which are being made for comparisons. That is to say that the Ben Davis apple, for instance, is being exhibited in one group by every State that produces it, and so on through the list of commercial apples. This affords an easy means of comparing the same fruit grown in the different sections of the United States, and shows the effect of soil, climate, altitude, etc. upon it. This includes, of course, coloring, size and flavor of the fruit. Such study must be of great interest to those interested in the production of fruit for market purposes. There are also notable collections of nuts, grapes, plums, peaches and pears which are arranged in the most artistic manner.

Outside exhibits of plants and flowering shrubs, add to the natural beauty of gardens on Agricultural Hill.

GROUND PLAN, PALACE OF HORTICULTURE.

HOW TO LOCATE AN EXHIBIT.

THE Palace of Horticulture, a ground plan of which accompanies this catalogue, shows the arrangement of the building in blocks, with aisles, entered and numbered. Blocks are numbered, and over each block is suspended a large sign which indicates the number of the block beneath. In every case possible the location of the Domestic exhibitor by block and aisle is given. Foreign and State exhibits are located by block and aisle boundaries.

P R E F A C E

A modern Universal Exposition well might be called an encyclopedia of society, as it contains, in highly specialized array, society's words and works. It is a collection of the wisdom and achievements of the world, brought together for the inspection of the world—for examination and study by its experts. It constitutes a compact, classified, indexed compendium, available for ready reference, of the achievements and ideas of society, in all phases of its activities, extending to the most material as well as to the most refined. . . . The Catalogue of such an Universal Exposition is, therefore, perhaps the most comprehensive and representative contemporary record of the progress and condition of the human race that may be devised. It is a succinct and authentic record of the exhibits of the Exposition, which are the evidences of the capacity and performance in all lines, intellectual, social and industrial, of all of the peoples of the world. The value of such a document and its significance, socially and commerciality, are incalculable. It is an epitome of the capacity and promises of mankind, while being at the same time a roll of honor—a certified register of those individuals and institutions which are taking active part in the life of the world to-day. . . .

FREDERICK J. V. SKIFF, Director of Exhibits.

INTRODUCTION.

Installation of Exhibits, Department of Forestry.

By TARLETON H. BEAN, Chief.

The Department of Forestry is associated for exhibit purposes with the Department of Fish and Game, and therefore the structure devoted to these two Departments is known as the Palace of Forestry, Fish and Game. The space devoted to forestry is, comparatively speaking, seen to be insignificant when it is known that the products of the forest industries are valued at one billion dollars annually.

In addition to the indoor exhibits, there are several acres devoted to an outdoor exhibit of forest planting.

The displays are not limited to forest products, but also illustrate forest policy and the practical work of tree planting.

Scientific features of this Department are shown by the displays illustrating the distribution of forests and of the genera and species of trees and plants as well as by the sections of trees of various degrees of thickness that demonstrate the anatomy and structure of woods.

Interesting sections of the displays treat of the diseases of forest trees, the peculiarities of forest growth, statistics of forest industries, and the relation of forests to climate.

In the selected exhibits installed in the Palace of Forestry, Fish and Game the main object is to illustrate the economic uses and history of such valuable coniferous trees as yellow pine, loblolly pine, cedar, cypress, redwood, spruce and hemlock, as well as the hard woods.

The indoor installation of forestry is made complete by the displays of the secondary products of the forest, such as woodenware, cooperage, basketry, the great industries based upon wood pulp, and other objects of forest resources, notably alcohol, turpentine and resins.

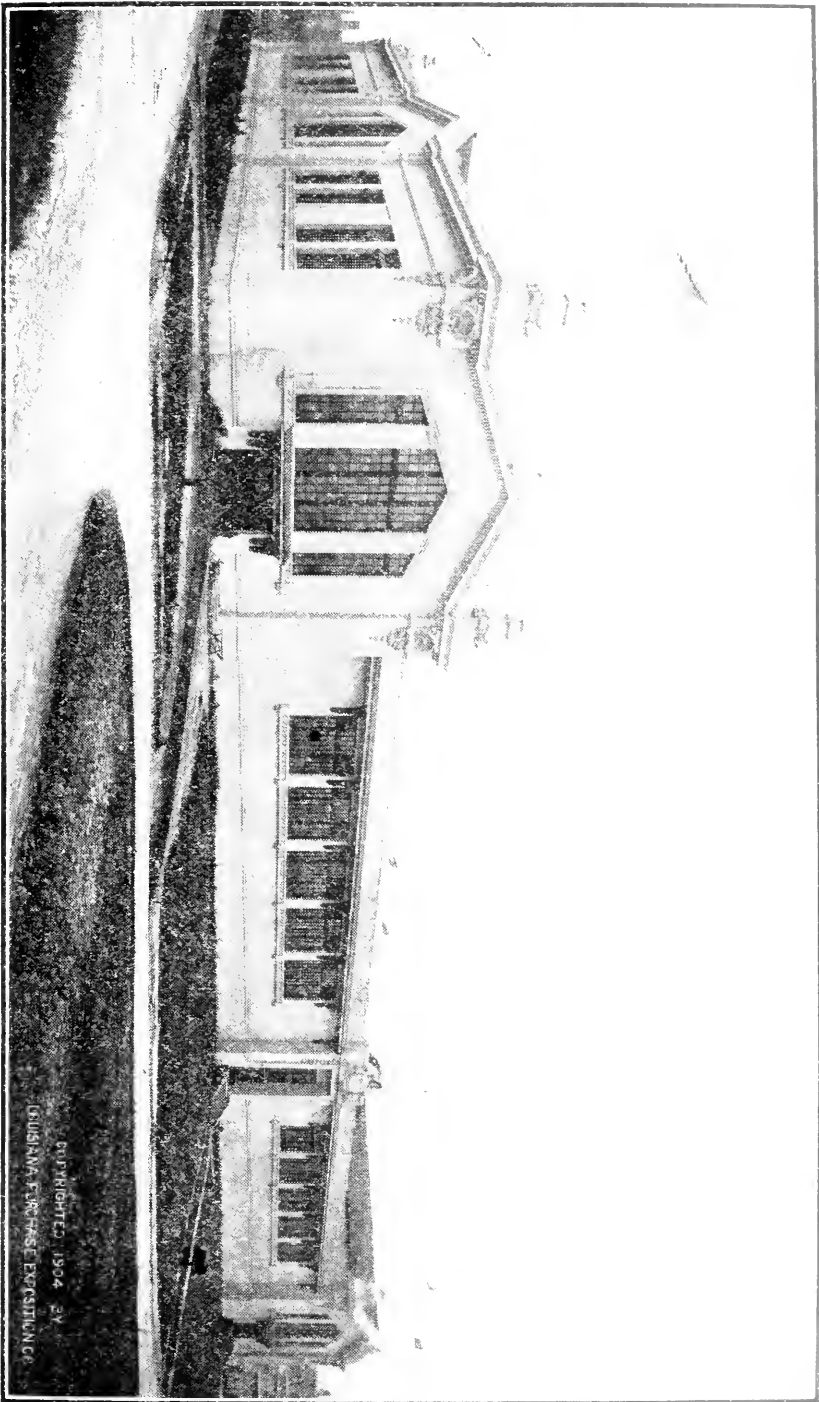

In the west end of the palace is located the United States Bureau of Forestry. Its conspicuous feature is revealed in the immense transparencies illustrating forest trees, natural and planted timber forests, forest topography, typical methods of lumbering, and the destruction of forests by fire and insects. This exhibit also shows the character and extent of government forest work; timber testing; preservation of construction timber by artificial means; practical forest management, and turpentine orcharding.

The outdoor exhibit of the United States Bureau of Forestry demonstrates the principles and practice of forest planting.

Other outdoor displays demonstrate the benefit of tree planting to farmers, and the United States Bureau of Plant Industry shows the forage and various farm crops of this country.

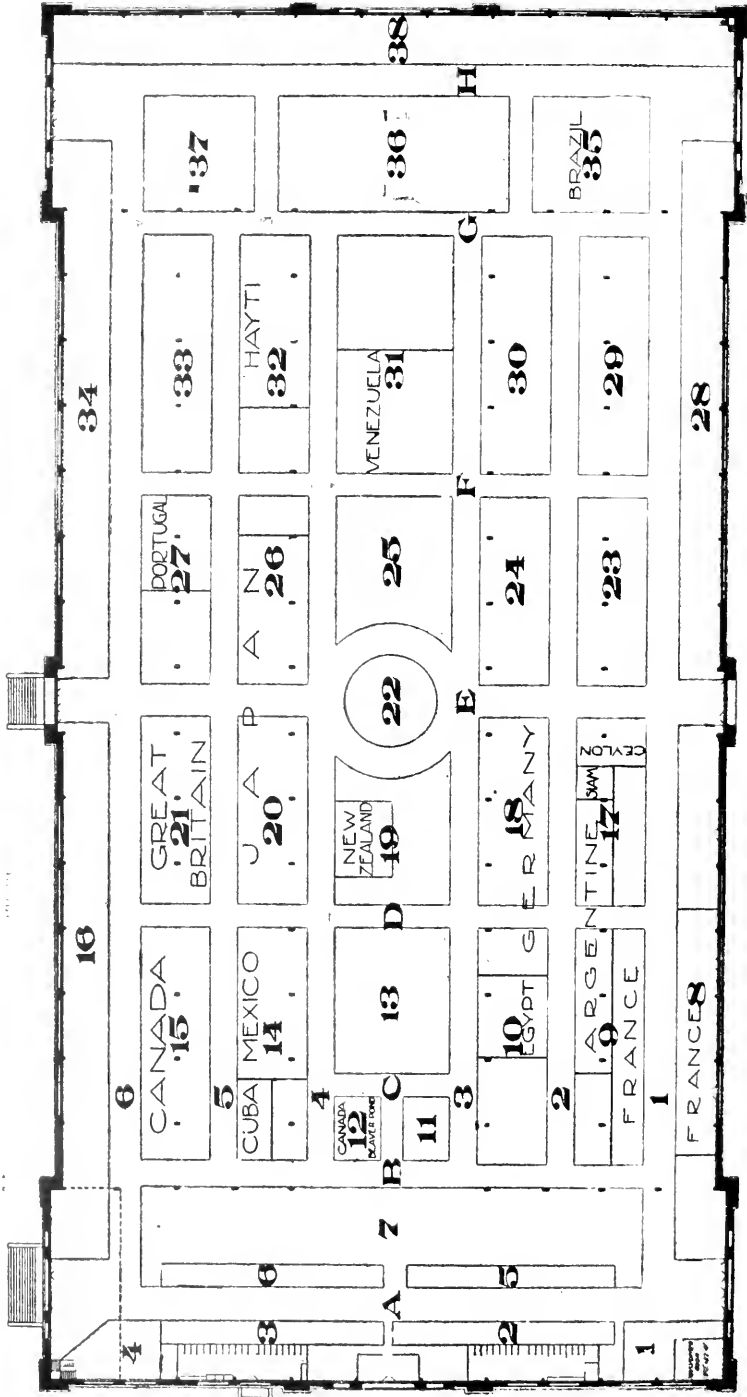

In the foreign exhibits are seen cabinet woods from Austria; specimens of cabinet and construction woods, forest seeds, and forest products, such as turpentine, camphor, varnish, wax, baskets, whips and barrels from Japan; soap, chemicals and medicinal preparations from the forests of Venezuela; forest implements, sawed timber, cork, wood, mosaics, panels, tanning barks, essences, rubber and gums from France and her colonies; seeds, roots, leaves, specimens of wood, bark, rubber, resins, vegetable down, quinine, and medicinal plants used by Indians for snake poison and for fever, from Brazil; specimens of woods, rattans, basket work, mat material, rubber, gums, and odd timber-hauling carts from Siam; woods, bark, roots, gums, rubber, medicinal plants and chewing gum from Mexico; corks, tooth picks, cooper's stock and rubber from Portugal; gums and varnish from Peru; rattans, woods from Ceylon; scented gums from Egypt; two hundred and sixteen kinds of forest products from Canada.

These interesting exhibits are clearly indicated by block and exhibit number in the catalogue.

PALACE OF FORESTRY AND FISH AND GAME.

INSTALLATION PLAN FOR FORESTRY, FISH AND GAME.

HOW TO LOCATE AN EXHIBIT.

Like other Palaces, Forestry and Fish and Game is divided into blocks separated by aisles, lettered and numbered. Above each block hangs a large sign, which will indicate immediately to the person searching for the location of a certain exhibit, the block in which the exhibit is installed. By consulting the Ground Plan in the Catalogue, and the entry, where aisle and block number are both given, the location of the exhibit will be ascertained at once. The exhibits in this Palace are largely by State and Foreign Commissions, and in those cases only the general location of the State and Country are given. Many forestry exhibits are outside of the Palace, but in each case the location is definitely given in the Catalogue.

PREFACE.

A modern Universal Exposition well might be called an encyclopedia society, as it contains, in highly specialized array, society's word and works, is a collection of the wisdom and achievements of the world, brought together for the inspection of the world---for examination and study by its experts. It constitutes a compact, classified, indexed compendium, available for ready reference, of the achievements and ideas of society, in all phases of its activities, extended to the most material as well as the most refined.

The Catalogue of such a Universal Exposition is, therefore, perhaps the most comprehensive and representative contemporary record of the progress and condition of the human race that may be devised. It is a distinct and authentic record of the exhibits of the Exposition, which are the evidences of the capacity and performance in all lines, intellectual, social, and industrial, of all of the peoples of the world. The value of such a document and its significance, socially and commercially are incalculable. It is an epitome of the capacity and promises of mankind, while being at the same time a roll of honor---a certified register of those individuals and institutions which are taking active part in the life of the world today.

FREDERICK J. V. SKIFF,

DIRECTOR OF EXHIBITS.

PALACE OF MINES AND METALLURGY

INTRODUCTION.

Installation of Exhibits in the Department of Mines and Metallurgy

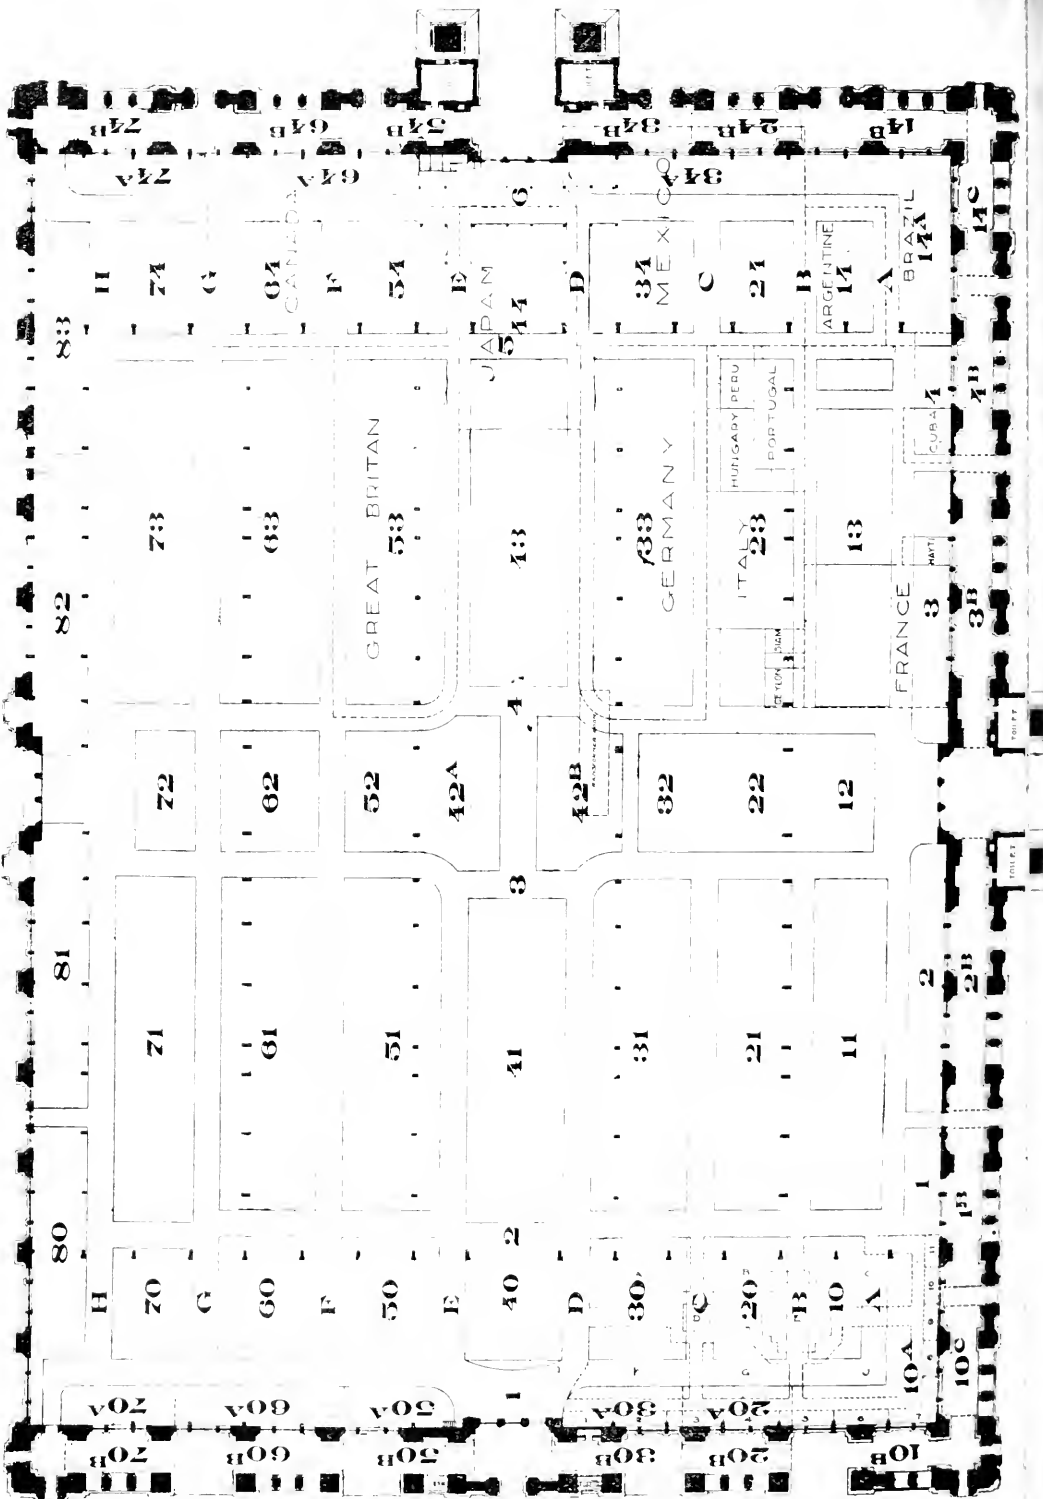

The Palace of Mines and Metallurgy, in which are installed mineral products, the machinery for mining and the equipment for utilizing the same, together with the resultant metals and other products, occupies the southeastern corner of the fan-shaped spread of the main picture embracing the leading exhibit palaces. It is overlooked by the Government Terrace on the southeast and the Art Hill on the southwest, its main entrance being directly opposite the Palace of Liberal Arts.

The general plan is rectangular, with broad overhanging roof or cornice, and the interior is treated with screen effect, affording a covered promenade or loggia around three sides of the building. The base of the screen consists of dividing columns separating panels which illustrate the history and operations of mining and metallurgy. Two of the main entrances are signalized each by a pair of obelisks and fine statuary ornamentation. The style is that known as secession. The building occupies an area of about nine acres, being 525 feet wide and 750 feet long, and was erected at a cost of about $500,000. It is well lighted, the numerous skylights being supplemented by many large windows along the four sides of the building.

Within this building and in the adjacent outdoor mining reservation, are displayed the mineral products of the world, together with illustrations of mining and metallurgical processes. The leading metallic ores, such as iron, lead, zinc, gold, silver, etc., are mainly illustrated by examples from the several states and foreign collective exhibits. These are supplemented by metallurgical exhibits and coal displays made by private individuals and corporations. Especial attention is given to the new and rarer minerals and processes for their reduction. This includes the several ones lately come into prominence through the possession of radio-active properties. Gems and rare stones and crystals are exploited at their best, and the methods of cutting and setting the same are illustrated by an operating lapidary establishment. Clay and its products have been given a very prominent position, and there are found not only the raw material but the most finished and modern ceramic art products, together with an operating pottery.

In the "Gulch" such exhibits as operating oil wells; gold, silver and lead mills and furnaces, aerial tramways, coal testing equipment, mining railways, etc., are fully displayed in actual size and under the customary methods of operation.

Briefly summarized, the Palace of Mines and Metallurgy and its adjacent areas contain much that is new or interesting in the special field allotted to it, as distinguished by its comprehensive title.

Ground Plan of the "Guleh," Exhibits, Department of Mines and Metallurgy

How to Find an Exhibitor.

The exhibit palaces, ground plans of which accompany each catalogue, are arranged in blocks, with aisles, like the squares and streets of a well-planned city. Aisles are lettered and numbered. Blocks are numbered and over each block is suspended a large sign which indicates the number of the block beneath. In every case possible at this early date, the location of the Domestic exhibitor by block and aisle is given. It has been impossible to do this in the case of the foreign exhibits for the preliminary edition. State exhibits are located by blocks and aisles. Location of exhibits in the "Gulch" are also indicated.

DEPARTMENT OF MINES AND METALLURGY

Official Classification of Exhibits.

GROUP 115.

WORKING OF MINES, ORE BEDS AND STONE QUARRIES

(Equipment and processes.)

- Class 667. Equipment and methods of geological surveys, and other institutions for the promotion of mining. Instruments and equipment for underground surveying.
- Class 668. Equipment and methods for prospecting for mineral veins and deposits; building stones, coal, petroleum, natural gas, artesian waters, etc.
- Class 669. Equipment and methods for assaying, analyzing or testing ores, rocks and other mineral substances.
- Class 670. Equipment and methods for drilling, cutting, or otherwise breaking down rock, ore, or other mineral in quarries, open cuts or mines; sinking shafts, opening galleries, drifts or tunnels.
- Class 671. Equipment for, and methods of timbering or otherwise securing mine shafts, drifts, or tunnels.
- Class 672. Electric, compressed air, or other motors, for use in opening and operating mines and quarries, and for operating equipment for handling ores and other minerals.
- Class 673. Explosives and methods for placing and firing the same, in mines, quarries and deep wells.
- Class 674. Equipment and methods for the underground handling and transportation of ore, coal, etc.
- Class 675. Machinery and appliances for draining mines and quarries.
- Class 676. Equipment for the methods of ventilating mines.
- Class 677. Equipment for and method of lighting mines; oils, acetylene, electricity; safety lamps, testing for gases, etc.
- Class 678. Safety appliances and methods; safety catches, signals, etc. Equipment for treatment of injuries. Mine sanitation.
- Class 679. Equipment and methods for handling mining products, and for their above-surface transportation; railways, inclined planes, loose cables, aerial cables, trolleys, etc.; appliances for loading and unloading wagons, boats, cars, etc.
- Class 680. Machinery, appliances and methods for working salt mines, petroleum wells, metaliferous sands and gravels.
- Class 681. Equipment and methods used in quarrying stone.

GROUP 116.

MINERALS AND STONES, AND THEIR UTILIZATION

- Class 682. Systematic collection in geology, general mineralogy, crystallography and palaeontology. Collections illustrating the structure, modes of occurrence, and origin of ore deposits, and other mineral deposits.
- Class 683. Ornamental and building stones, rough hewn, sawed or polished; stones for highway construction and other purposes.
- Class 684. Mechanical appliances and processes used in cutting, sawing, shaping and polishing marble, granite, slate, and other building stone.
- Class 685. Equipment and processes for crushing, separating, washing or drying rocks, clays and other minerals, and mineral fuels.

- Class 686. Rocks which produce lime or cement. Processes of utilization with their products.
- Class 687. Grindstones, whetstones, pumice stone; other mineral abrasives. Processes of their manufacture.
- Class 688. Slate; equipment for preparing slate; processes and products.
- Class 689. Refractory rocks, fire clays and sands. Moulding sands.
- Class 690. Clays, kaolin, flint, feldspar and other substances used in the manufacture of earthenware, brick, terra cotta, glass, etc. Processes of utilization with specimens of their products.
- Class 691. Mica, asbestos, meerschann, fluorspar, graphite (plumbago), gypsum, and other non-metallic minerals, not elsewhere provided for. Processes of utilization with their products.
- Class 692. Gems and precious stones; lapidary work.
- Class 693. Common salt; nitrates, sulphates, borates, and other natural salts. Methods of purification with their products.
- Class 694. Mineral waters. Artesian water conditions. Utilization of water.
- Class 695. Sulphur and pyrite. Processes of utilization, with their products.
- Class 696. Natural mineral paints. Processes of preparation, with their products.
- Class 697. Natural mineral fertilizers. Processes of preparation, with their products.
- Class 698. Asphalt and asphaltic rocks; mineral bitumen and wax; amber, jet, etc. Processes of utilization and their products.
- Class 699. Mineral fuels and luminants; peat, lignite, bituminous coal, anthracite; coal dust and compressed coal; petroleum and its products, mineral gases. Equipment and processes for compressing fuels; for preparing coke and by-products; for storing, refining and handling petroleum and its products.
- Class 700. Metallic ores of every kind and products. Native metals.

GROUP II7.

MINE MODELS, MAPS, PHOTOGRAPHS

- Class 701. Maps, charts, photographs and models illustrating geologic or topographic features, and their relation to mineral deposits, or the structure or mode of occurrence of mineral deposits. Mine models, working plans of mines; maps, photographs, etc., of mining operations, plants, camps, etc.

GROUP II8.

METALLURGY

- Class 702. Equipment and processes for the handling and preparation of ores; hand sorting, storing, sampling, crushing and pulverizing, screens and screening, concentrating, elevating conveying, drying, etc.
- Class 703. Equipment in amalgamation, and in the use of cyanide, chlorine, and other chemical solvents in the treatment of ores.
- Class 704. Equipment, methods and products of the manufacture and use of refractory materials for metallurgical purposes (bricks, blocks, crucibles, retorts, etc.).
- Class 705. Equipment and processes in smelting ores; furnaces, furnace construction; appliances used in operating furnaces and handling furnace products. Equipment and methods in the generation and use of gases, the preparation and use of liquid and solid fuels, and the use of electricity in metallurgical furnaces; handling and use of slags; recovery and use of dust, fumes, etc.
- Class 706. Equipment, materials, processes, and products used in the treatment of the ores of iron, manganese, chromium, nickel, and other metals used in the manufactures of iron alloys and special steels. Equipment for smelting, blast furnaces and accessories; iron foundries, cupolas, blowers, etc. Production and varieties of pig iron and iron castings, malleable cast iron, ferromanganese and manganese castings, and castings of other iron alloys, and the metals used in these alloys.

- Class 707. Equipment, methods and products of the manufacture of iron and steel in ingots, billets, bars, sheets or plates, etc., and of the production of steel castings, etc. Puddling, reverberatory and smelting furnaces; hammers, presses, rolls. General arrangements and equipments for producing Bessemer metal, open hearth steel or crucible steel. Various processes of manufacturing iron or steel directly from the ores.
- Class 708. Equipment, methods and processes in the manufacture of iron and steel in commercial forms; hoop iron, band iron, rods for wire drawing, iron and steel wire; iron of special sections, armor plates, sheet iron and sheet steel for commercial, building, metallurgical, and other purposes; rails, axles, tires, wheels, large forgings, gun barrels, projectiles, tubes (welded or seamless), etc. Ordnance equipment other than naval and its production.
- Class 709. Equipment, materials, and processes used in the metallurgy of copper, and products obtained. Treatment of ores, production of copper and copper alloys, bronze, brass, etc., in ingots, bars, sheets, wire and other forms. Electrolytic and other processes used in refining copper, and in separating the accompanying gold, silver, etc.
- Class 710. Equipment, materials and processes used in the metallurgy of gold and silver, and products obtained. Treatment of the ores: retorting, refining, stamping, and shipping bullion. Gold and silver in bars and other forms. Equipment, materials, and processes used in the metallurgy of lead, and products obtained; treatment of the ores; refining of lead bullion and the separation of the associated gold and silver. Production of lead in commercial forms, pig, bars, sheets, pipes, shot, test lead; lead alloys; white lead.
- Class 711. Equipment, materials, and processes used in the metallurgy of zinc, tin, nickel, and cobalt. Zinc spelter, metallic zinc in bars and sheets, and zinc white. Tin in ingots and other forms. Alloys of tin. Nickel in ingots, bars, rods, etc.; alloys of nickel, German silver, nickel-steel, etc.
- Class 712. Equipment, materials, and processes used in the metallurgy of aluminum, antimony, mercury, arsenic, platinum, and other metals, and their alloys.
- Class 713. Metal plates and screens, flanged, stamped, cut, decorated, perforated, etc., and their production. Production and use in metallurgical operations of wire cloth and screens. Drawn tubes and piping in iron, steel, copper, tin, lead, etc., and their production.
- Class 714. General foundry equipment, processes and products. The production of miscellaneous alloys.
- Class 715. Equipment for, and processes of washing goldsmith's dust, and dust from refiners of precious metals. Appliances, processes and products for exact rolling and beating of gold, silver, tin, and other rare metals. Apparatus and processes for working platinum and other rare metals.
- Class 716. Equipment, processes and products of electro-metallurgy; in electric smelting, the refining and extraction of metals and in metal deposition (electroplating, etc.).
- Class 717. Apparatus and processes (other than electro-metallurgical) for coating metals with more precious, more malleable, or more durable metals; metal galvanized, leaded or nickel plated; tin plates (bright, dull, mottled, ornamented, printed), etc.
- Class 718. Appliances and processes for enameling metallic objects, and products.

GROUP 119.

LITERATURE OF MINING, METALLURGY, ETC.

- Class 719. Statistics and publications relative to geology, mineralogy, palaeontology, topography, quarrying, mining, metallurgy, and the manipulation of mineral products, the development of water resources, etc.

Department L—Mines and Metallurgy.

UNITED STATES.

Equipment for Working Mines, Ore Beds, Etc.

GROUP 115.

WORKING OF MINES, ORE BEDS AND QUARRIES.

Insworth, Wm., & Sons, Denver, Col.
Assay balances. (With Colorado School of Mines.)
Largest manufacturers of fine balances and weights. See our balances (sensitivity of .05 mg. to .002 mg.) in operation in the weighing room of Colorado School of Mines. See advt. in Section II.

Allis-Chalmers Co., Chicago, Ill.
Mining and milling machinery. Block 82, aisle H.

American Concentrator Co., Joplin, Mo. Ore concentrators, separators, ore milling machinery. Block 4-B, corridor. (Mo. State space also.)

American Diamond Rock Drill Co., New York. Diamond drills and drilling machines. Block 10-B, corridor, also "Gulch."

Diamond drills for prospecting, taking out a solid core. Machines shown are the result of thirty-five years' experience in all parts of the world. Highest awards ever exhibited. Largest core ever taken out and deepest hole in the United States.

American Well Works, Aurora, Ill.
Prospecting and well sinking machinery, air compressors, air lifts and pumps. Block 13, aisle A.

Archer Iron Works, Chicago, Ill.
Steel barrows, mining cars and lumber carts. Block 3, aisle A.

Atlas Car & Manufacturing Company, Cleveland, O. Ore cars. Block 73, also in "Gulch."

Austin Manufacturing Co., Chicago, Ill. Rock and ore crushing machinery. Block 73, aisles 5, G and H. Deep well machinery, "Gulch."

The Austin Gyrotary crushers, together with the line of Austin elevators, screens, dump cars and contractor's machinery, are in general use by the largest contractors, railroad and mining companies all over the world, and embody the highest improvements in machinery of this class. Also have a large exhibit of road building machinery, Liberal Arts Palace.

135. Braun, F. W., Co., Los Angeles, Cal. Modern appliances for assayers and chemists. Block 81, aisle H. and Metal pavilion.

14. Broderick & Bascom Rope Co., St. Louis, Mo. Ore tramway cables. Block 3, aisle A.

Colorado Iron Works, Denver, Col.
Mining and cyanide process. (Black Hills Mining Men's Assn. Mill—Gulch.)

We make smelting furnaces and erect complete smelting plants for the reduction of copper and lead ores. Stamp mills, concentration mills and cyanide plants erected and turned over in operation.

Colorado School of Mines, Golden, Col.
Working assay and metallurgical laboratory. Metal Pavilion.

Showing methods and apparatus used in the determination of values in gold, silver, lead, copper, zinc and iron ores, by fire and wet analysis. This school, established in 1874, is one of the largest of its class in the world, and located in the heart of an active mining region. It is noted for its thorough and practical instruction and the success of its graduates.

72. Crawford & McCrimmon Co., Brazil, Ind. Hoisting engine and ventilating fan. Gulch and block 14-B, corridor.

230. DeLaval Steam Turbine Company, New York City. Steam and hydraulic turbine, mine and drainage pumps. Block 13. Working mine pump installed in Gulch.

Shops and sales dept., Trenton, N. J. Manufacturers of steam turbines, steam turbine dynamos, steam turbine centrifugal pumps, electric motor centrifugal pumps, steam turbine blowers, etc. Besides our exhibit in Mining Gulch, see our 300 H. P. steam turbine in connection with Bullock Electric Mfg. Co.'s exhibit in Electricity Building.

- Denver Fire Clay Co., Denver, Colo. Assayer's and chemist's appliances. Metal Pavilion.
10. Downie Pump Co., Downieville, Pa. Operating mine and deep well pumps. Constitution Ave., near Federal. Gulch. Double and single acting steam and geared deep well pumps.
163. Fairbanks, Morse & Co., Chicago, Ill. Compressed air and other motors for mines, mining equipment. (Installed in Palace of Machinery.)
192. Fritsch, Arthur, Foundry & Machine Co., St. Louis, Mo. Mining, milling and crushing machinery. Block 73 aisles G and H.
129. Funke, A. H., New York, N. Y. Acetylene mine lamps. Block 62, aisle G.
- General Electric Co., Schenectady, N. Y. Electric mining locomotive. Palace of Electricity.
- German Kali Works, New York City. Sylvinit, carnallit. Block 13, aisle C.
97. Gurley, W. & L. E., Troy, N. Y. Instruments for mine work for surveyors and engineers. Block 42-A, aisle 3.
27. Hamilton Manufacturing Company, Columbus, O. A mechanical mine car loader in operation. Center of Gulch.
121. Hockensmith Wheel & Mine Car Co., Penn Station, Pa. Mine supplies, car wheels. Block 14-B, corridor.
70. Howell's Mining Drill Co., Plymouth, Pa. Air and hand drills and drilling machines. Block 10-B, corridor.
- Iron City Tool Co., Pittsburg, Pa. Mining tools. (Pittsburg Chamber of Commerce.)
180. Jackson Electric Drill & Supply Co., The, Denver, Col. Electric rock drill. Block 30-B, corridor.
262. Johnson, Moses P., Machinery Co., St. Louis, Mo. Engines, boilers and mine hoisting machines. Block 20-B, corridor.
98. Keuffel & Esser Co., New York, N. Y. Instruments of precision, mining transits, compasses, etc. Block 42-A, aisle 4.
10. Keystone Driller Co., Beaver Falls, Pa. Mineral prospecting equipment. Block 60-B, corridor. Oil and deep well drills in operation. Gulch. Machines for drilling artesian wells, testing placer grounds, lead, zinc, coal, etc. — any depth up to 2500 feet.
13. Leschen, A., & Sons Rope Co., St. Louis, Mo. Double wire rope aerial tramway, in operation, for conveying ores and merchandise. Gulch.
44. Leyner, J. George, Engineering Works Co., Denver, Col. Mining machinery, air compressors, rock drills. Block 81, aisle H.
- Morgan Electric Machine Co., East Chicago, Ind. Electric mine locomotive and third rail haulage system, applied to mining. Gulch.
260. "Mines and Minerals," Scranton, Pa. Lighting devices for mines. Block 61, aisle 3.
- Myles Salt Company, New Orleans, La. Salt. Block 38, aisle B. Agricultural Building.
23. Ohio Brass Company, St. Louis, Mo. Electric railway brass bonds, on mining railway. Gulch.
4. Pacific Coast Borax Company, Chicago, Ill. Transportation of borax. Federal Avenue, near Rustic Bridge. Gulch.
- Perfected Kerosene Motor Company, St. Louis, Mo. Kerosene engines. Foundry.
208. Rice Gasoline Rock Drill Company, Chicago, Ill. Rock drill with self-contained power. Block 73, aisle G.
16. Robins Conveying Belt Co., New York, N. Y. Fuel belt conveyors. (Fuel testing plant.) Gulch.
5. St. Louis Well Machine and Tool Co., St. Louis, Mo. Well machinery and equipment. Block 63, aisle F. Well drilling outfits in operation. Gulch.
- Schneider, George, Denver, Colo. Burro pack train, illustrating transportation of ores over mountain trails. (South end of Gulch.)
124. Schoellborn Albrecht Machine Co., St. Louis, Mo. Crushing and pulverizing machinery. Block 64-B, corridor.
115. Trenton Iron Company, Trenton, N. J. Wire rope tramways, cableways, surface haulage, wire ropes. Block 23, aisles 4 and C.
25. Star Drilling Machine Company, Akron, O. Oil and deep well drilling outfits. Constitution Avenue, near Federal. Gulch.
250. Star Electric Fuse Works, Wilkes-Barre, Pa. Fuse caps and electric blasting apparatus. Block 40, aisle E.
- Union Steam Pump Company, Battle Creek, Michigan. Mine pumps. Block 33, Machinery Building.
- United States Geological Survey, Washington, D. C. Coal testing laboratory and its equipment in operation. Metal Pavilion.
186. Wantling's Favorite Coal Drill Co., Peoria, Ill. Coal drilling machinery and miner's supplies. Block 10-C, corridor.

Watt Mining Car Wheel Co.,
Cincinnati, O. Mine cars, ore cars, mine car wheels and axles. Block 62, aisles 3 and F.

Largest exclusive establishment of its kind in the world.

Williams Patent Crusher & Pulverizer Co., St. Louis, Mo. Crushers and pulverizers. Block 62, aisles 4 and

Williams Patent Crusher & Pulverizer
St. Louis, Mo., U. S. A., exhibit also the United States Geological Survey Fuel Testing Plant.

Wood Drill Works, Paterson, N. J.
Rock drills and mining machinery.
Block 30-B, corridor.

Worthington Pump Company, St.
Louis, Mo. Mine pump. Block 12, aisle A.

GROUP 116.

CEMENTS AND STONES AND THEIR UTILIZATION.

Alton Paving Brick Company,
Chicago, Ill. Shales and paving brick.
Block 20, space F.

American Cement Company, Cop-page, Pa. Cement rock, ground rock, linker and cement. Block 11, aisle B.
Sold reliable "Giant" Portland Cement, which has been used in the construction of some of the greatest engineering wonders of the world, has been manufactured continuously since 1833 to the extent of over 10,000,000 barrels. It is one of the oldest brands of American Portland Cement. Its reputation for permanency and durability is unexcelled.

American Clay Working Machinery
Co., Bucyrus, Ohio. Clay and clay products. Block 20, space F.
Largest maker in the world of clay-working machinery for the manufacture of brick, tile, terra cotta, sewer pipe, sanitary fixtures, cement pottery and brick by the sand lime process, full factory outfit with steam and waste dryers. A full dis-assortment of clay products made on our own machinery. Get a souvenir brick. Factory at Bucyrus and Willoughby, O.

American Coal Products Company,
New York. Bi-product coke oven plants and coal products. Block 73, aisles 4 and H, also in Fuel Testing Plant, aisle H.

American Kaolin Company, Akron, Ohio. China and refractory clays and products. Block 20, space E.

American Terra Cotta Co., Chicago,
Ill. Terra cotta and art pottery.
Block 20, alcove.

3. ASSOCIATION OF PORTLAND
Cement Manufacturers. Exhibits by the following firms in the Cement building, gulch:

Algonite Stone Co., St. Louis, Mo.
Artificial stone.

American Cement Tile Mfg. Co.,
Wampum, Pa. Cement roofing tile.

American Hydraulic Stone Co., Denver, Colo. Artificial stone.

Atlas Portland Cement Co., The, New York. Portland cement.

The Atlas Portland Cement Co. has the largest and most modern works in the world. A standard Portland cement is essentially a product of applied science, and no expense is spared by the management to maintain that standard of excellency which enables them to guarantee Atlas Portland cement equal or superior to the best imported brands.

Bright, Col. E., & Co., Columbus, O.
Eccentric cement concrete press.

Brown Hoisting Machinery Co.,
Cleveland, O. Cement roofing.

Buhrer, C., Sandusky, O. Concrete railway ties.

Cement Machinery Manufacturing Co.,
Burlington, Iowa. Machines for molding artificial stone,
artificial stone.

Cement (Normandin) Machinery Co.,
Jackson, Mich. Hollow building blocks.

Cleveland Builder Supply Co., Cleveland, O. Cement granitoid pavements.

Fraser Concrete Construction Co., Canada.

Furman Construction Co., The, Detroit,
Mich. Cement roof tiling.

Hennibeque Construction Co., The,
New York, N. Y. Armored concrete construction.

Hoskins & Camp, St. Louis, Mo. Artificial stone.

Hydraulic Concrete Construction Co., St. Louis, Mo. Winged hollow block machine, and hollow block construction.

Link-Hart Mfg. Co., Bloomington, Ill. Cement block machine.

Lupton, David, Sons Co., Philadelphia,
Pa. Cement filled window and door frames.

Mackey, A. D., Chicago, Ill. Concrete mixing machine.

McKelvey Concrete Machinery Co.,
Chicago, Ill. Concrete machinery.

Mitchell, J. A., Hillsdale, Mich. Cement posts and building blocks.

Municipal Engineering Co., Chicago,
Ill. Cement mixers and engines.

Portland Cement Co., The, Denver, Colo. Cement. Metal Pavilion.

Mfrs. of Ideal Portland cement, lime and plaster. Daily capacity, 500 tons.

Probst, H., St. Louis. Visitine system, concrete beams.

Risse & Kline, New York, N. Y. A concrete and cement filtration plant.

Rackle, Geo. A. & Son, Cleveland, O. Artificial stone.

Sieglwart, Hans, New York. Concrete beams.

Smith Concrete Co., The, Milwaukee, Wis. Concrete mixing machine.

Stevens Cast Stone Co., Chicago, Ill. Artificial stone and building blocks.

Trussed Concrete Steel Co., Detroit, Mich. Reinforced concrete beams and posts.

Truss Metal Lath Co., New York, N. Y. Reinforced concrete construction.

Vulcanite Paving Co., Philadelphia, Pa. Cement mosaic work.

Warner Co., Charles, Wilmington, Del. Cement burial vaults.

Weber Steel Concrete Chimney Co., Chicago, Ill. Concrete chimney construction.

Winget Concrete Machine Co., The, Columbus, O. Hollow concrete building block machinery, Gulch. (Also in Palace of Liberal Arts.)

258. Bausch, Fred., St. Louis, Mo. Glass, pot and fire clays. Block 20, space J.

Beaver Falls Art Tile Co., Pittsburg, Pa. Glazed tile. (With Pittsburg Chamber of Commerce.)

56. Bell, The George, Co., Denver, Col. Gems, operating lapidary. Block 63, aisle E.

See our lapidaries at work cutting American gem stones.

1. Bethlehem Steel Company, South Bethlehem, Pa. Iron ores, coal, limestone. Blocks 12, 22 and 32, aisles A, B and C.

Bird, J. A. & W. Co., Boston, Mass. Mineral (cold water) paint. (Installed in Palace of Varied Industries.)

Magnite makes a firm, hard surface. Very fire-resisting. The white is the whitest white made and will not turn yellow. Will neither rub nor scale. Awarded medal at Tennessee Centennial Exposition; also Toronto Exposition.

175. Bloomfield, Charles A., Metuchen, N. J. Clays and finished products. Block 20, space B.

120. Blue Ridge Enameled Brick Co., Newark, N. J. Clays and enameled bricks. Block 20, space J.

188. Borgner, Cyrus, Philadelphia, Pa. Fire brick, tile and gas retorts. Block 20, space F.

224. Bridgeport Wood Finishing Company, New Milford, Conn. Quartz wood filler. Block 1-B, corridor.

109. Brock Brothers, St. Louis, Mo. Cement roofing tile. Block 20, aisle 11.

68. Brouwer, T. A., Jr., Westhampton, N. Y. Pottery, fire painting and glaze under glaze. Block 20, space 9.

159. Cambridge Tile Manufacturing Co., Covington, Ky. Floor, wall and a tiles. Block 20, alcove aisle.

29. Celadon Roofing Tile Company, New York City. Roofing tile. Railway stations in "Gulch."

228. Cement (Normandin) Machine Co., Jackson, Mich. Cement concrete building block machinery; cement ornamental molds. Block 11, aisles 1 and A.

The Normandin machines and the product are adopted and used by the Government. The leading contractors, builders, engineers, architects and railroad use thousands of Normandin blocks daily. Their manufacture is a permanent and profitable business.

106. Chicago, Wilmington & Vermilion Coal Co., Chicago, Ill. Coal. Block 62, aisle G.

57. Cleveland Cliffs Iron Company, Cleveland, O. Iron ores, coal, coke and bi-products. Block 31, aisle C.

Cleveland Stone Co., Cleveland, O. Grindstones. Block 11, aisle A.

Coffeyville Roofing Tile Co., Coffeyville, Kansas. Clay and roofing tile. Block 20.

4. Colorado Fuel & Iron Company, Denver, Colo. Iron ores, coal and coke. Block 71, aisles 3, G and H.

96. Consolidated Coal Co., New York, N. Y. Coal. Block 42-A, aisles 1 and 4.

176. Davis Colliery Co., Harding, Va. Coal. Block 62, aisle 3.

217. Denver & Northwestern Fuel Company, Denver, Colo. Coal. Block 62, aisle 3.

134. Drake Company, St. Paul, Minn. Agatized wood, polished and rough. Block 40.

Eimer & Amend, New York, N. Y. Fluorine, radium minerals, radium apparatus, ultra-violet minerals. Block 40, aisle 1.

134. English, George L., New York City. Monazite and radiographs made with monazite. Block 40.

Evans & Howard Fire Brick Co., St. Louis, Mo. Clay and fire brick. Block 20.

169. Excelsior Granite Co., Heat Springs, S. C. Dark blue fine grained granite. Block 1-B, corridor.

- Excelsior Terra Cotta Co., Rocky Hill, N. J. Clays and architectural terra cotta. Block 20, entrance 1.
- Fairmont Coal Co., Fairmont, W. Va. Coal. Block 42-A, aisles 3 and 4.
- Forbes, J. P., & Company, Chicago, Ill. Mineral Water. Block 4.
- Fort Madison and Appanoose Stone Company, Fort Madison, Ia. Building stone, dolomite. Block 2-B, corridor.
- World's Fair and Paris Awards.
- Fulton Fire Brick Company, Fulton, Mo. Fire clays, fire brick and tile. Block 20, space J.
- Georgia Geological Survey, Atlanta, Ga. Kaolin, potters clay and products. Block 20, space G.
- Hartford Faience Co., Hartford, Conn. Clays, architectural faience, faience mantels, terra vitrae tile, and electrical porcelain. Block 20, alcove aisle.
- Hayden Automatic Block Machine Co., Columbus, O. Building block machines. Block 2, B corridor.
- The most simple and thorough block machine on the market. The most economical, and upon comparison will be found to be the best machine made. Full particulars furnished upon application to the office, 112 West Broad St., P. O. Box 305.
- Huenekes Co., H., New York, N. Y. Sand-lime brick. Block 20, aisle C.
- Keith, Alabough & Dunwoody, Cascade Springs, Mo. Clays and face enamel paving and building brick. Block 20, space E.
- Hydraulic Press Manufacturing Company, Mount Gilead, O. Hydraulic press in operation for the manufacture of cement blocks. Northern portion of "Gulch." (Cement Building.)
- Indiana Coal Operators' Association, Lawrenceburg, Ind. Coal. Block 52, aisle G.
- International Nickel Co., New York, N. Y. Nickel ores, manufactured products. Block 42-B, aisles 3 and 4.
- International Onyx and Marble Co., Denver, Col. Onyx and marble. Block 11, aisle A.
- Jackson, F. E., Orange, N. J. Radium parium platinum screen. Block 40, aisle 1.
- Keith, Alabough & Dunwoody, Cascade Springs, S. D. Crystal cave. Marvelous reproduction of fifteen of the most interesting rooms of the Natural Cave, using 300,000 pounds of natural crystals taken from the cave situated near Hot Springs, S. D. and owned by the U. S. Government. This wonderful reproduction was visited by over 2,000,000 people at the World's Fair, Chicago.
- 79. Kelley, James, Truesdale, Mo. Refractory flint clay. Block 20, space J.

A modern Universal Exposition well might be called an encyclopedia of society, as it contains, in highly specialized array, society's words and works. It is a collection of the wisdom and achievements of the world, brought together for the inspection of the world—for examination and study by its experts. It constitutes a compact, classified, indexed compendium, available for ready reference, of the achievements and ideas of society, in all phases of its activities, extending to the most material as well as to the most refined. . . . The Catalogue of such an Universal Exposition is, therefore, perhaps the most comprehensive and representative contemporary record of the progress and condition of the human race that may be devised. It is a succinct and authentic record of the exhibits of the Exposition, which are the evidences of the capacity and performance in all lines, intellectual, social and industrial, of all of the peoples of the world. The value of such a document and its significance, socially and commercially, are incalculable. It is an epitome of the capacity and promises of mankind, while being at the same time a roll of honor—a certified register of those individuals and institutions which are taking active part in the life of the world to-day. . . .

INSTALLATION PLAN FOR FORESTRY, FISH AND GAME.

INTRODUCTION.

Installation of Exhibits, Department of Fish and Game.

By TARLETON H. BEAN, Chief.

The Department of Fish and Game is represented by comprehensive exhibits installed in the Palace of Forestry, Fish and Game, and arranged under five groups, viz.: Hunting equipment, products of hunting, fishing equipment and products, product of fisheries, and fish culture.

This Department is not simply the greatest museum of mounted specimens of fish and game, and of implements of the hunter and fisherman ever seen at a universal exposition, but in addition there are live exhibits in the way of aquariums and fish hatcheries, as well as an outdoor display of Massacral wild animals living in surroundings as nearly natural as possible.

Thus the entire field of aquatic and forest life is covered and depicted in a way never before attempted at any previous exposition. The trophies of forest and stream may be seen in the mounted specimens, and all the appliances of the hunter and angler in every quarter of the globe are brought together in one systematic and interesting collection. Above all, the pisciculturist here has an opportunity to study the peculiarities and habits of fresh and salt water fish in the aquariums, and the zoologist can refresh his memory by observing at close range the wild animals in the outdoor menagerie.

Foreign countries that have sent interesting exhibits are Great Britain, France and her colonies, and Japan, Soudan, Canada, Ceylon, Brazil, Siam, Portugal and Argentine.

Great Britain in the line of hunting equipment is represented by fine collections of sporting guns and rifles for small and large game shooting, and ornamented guns inlaid with gold and silver and precious stones. Hunting products are shown in the trophies of hunts for large game in the wilds of Africa. In the line of fishing equipment and products the Marine Biological Association of the United Kingdom sends an exhibit illustrating the different stages of growth and development of the principal food fishes, and containing examples of the more important shell fish which serve as human food in the British Isles. This association also shows a collection of crabs, lobsters, mussels, starfishes, sea urchins and marine worms—creatures which constitute the chief food supply of the marketable fishes.

France is represented by a unique collection of hunter's traps for lions, tigers and other big game in her colony in Abyssinia. Somaliland also shows rare mother-of-pearl, as well as sponges, coral and many sea products.

There are arms and trophies of big animal hunts, and a beautiful collection of ivory and ostrich feathers, from Soudan; many products of hunting and fishing in Ceylon; mounted specimens of game, fish and birds, and skins of the tapir, lontra, jaguar, alligator, wolf, and large snakes from Argentine and Brazil; live beavers and their dams from Canada; unique hunting weapons, tiger traps, rhinoceros hides, elephant's tusks, and queer fishing appliances from far-away Siam. Japan reveals a surprising commercial industry in a collection of oysters, crabs, eels, fishing appliances of oriental make, furs and skins of wild animals, downs of sea birds, salt herring, anchovies and sardines in oil, and walking sticks, cigarette holders, pipes, pen holders, jewelry, buttons and toys made of coral and shells.

In the Domestic Section nearly every State in the Union is represented by one feature or another. There are model hunting outfits, showing the latest improved inventions for field and camp service; appliances for training hunting dogs; historic firearms and guns of the latest patterns; mounted specimens of game, fish and birds of this country; boats, canoes, seines and all fishing equipment; products of fisheries, including the illustration of processes in the great salmon canneries; fresh and salt water aquariums; outside shooting range, to test the shooting qualities of rifles.

These exhibits can be easily located by referring to the block and exhibit numbers in the catalogue.

PREFACE

A modern Universal Exposition well might be called an encyclopedia of society, as it contains, in highly specialized array, society's words and works. It is a collection of the wisdom and achievements of the world, brought together for the inspection of the world—for examination and study by its experts. It constitutes a compact, classified, indexed compendium, available for ready reference, of the achievements and ideas of society, in all phases of its activities, extending to the most material, as well as to the most refined.

The catalogue of such a Universal Exposition is, therefore, perhaps the most comprehensive and representative contemporary record of the progress and condition of the human race that may be devised. It is a succinct and authentic record of the exhibits of the Exposition, which are the evidences of the capacity and performance in all lines, intellectual, social and industrial, of all the peoples of the world. The value of such a document, and its significance socially and commercially, are incalculable. It is an epitome of the capacity and promise of mankind; while being at the same time a roll of honor—a certified register of those individuals and institutions which are taking an active part in the life of the world to-day.

FREDERICK J. V. SKIFF,

Director of Exhibits.

INTRODUCTION

By W J McGEE, Chief of Department

THE primary purpose of this department is to supplement the others in such manner that the Louisiana Purchase Exposition will form a picture of Man and his Works. Other departments are devoted mainly to the Works of Man—this mainly to Man himself; yet, to illustrate the connection between the types of mankind and display the course and tendencies of human development, the simple works of the lower types will be exhibited. The products of the less advanced races and peoples are drawn both from living inhabitants of remote districts and from collections of prehistoric relics. The other departments display the present condition, while this reveals the progress of mankind.

The Department comprises six sections, viz.: Ethnology, Indian School, Archeology, History, Anthropometry, and Psychometry.

The Section of Ethnology is devoted to race-types or varieties of mankind. These are illustrated by living groups occupying habitations erected by themselves chiefly from materials brought from their native lands for the purpose, each engaged in accustomed occupations, preparing and eating their accustomed food, and making and wearing their accustomed apparel. While the several groups were chosen primarily to represent the human varieties or sub-species, they were selected also with the view of illustrating the arts, industries, languages, social customs and beliefs prevailing among the various nations and people; i. e., the groups represent both race-types and culture-types.

The Indian School Section is designed to display the educational methods which have been developed in the Bureau of Indian Affairs, and to illustrate the most approved methods of raising aboriginal tribes to the plane of citizenship. The central feature of the section is a Model Indian School, comprising a corps of teachers and an assemblage of pupils drawn from various reservations. In this school special attention is given to manual training, since experience has shown that among all aboriginal peoples the hand leads the mind; and, to show the contrast between the native and the new in Indian culture, groups of old Indians are kept employed in aboriginal handiwork in the Indian School Building across the hall from the class-rooms in which the modern work is displayed. The Indian talent for music is shown both by native performance and by a trained orchestra; the capacity of our Indian wards for military service is displayed on a parade-ground; and the facility with which they assimilate the culture and graces of enlightenment may be seen in the character of the more advanced pupils and teachers. In brief, the Indian School illustrates the means whereby America bears her share of the White Man's Burden, and the means by which this duty may be done in our insular possessions and in lands beyond the sea.

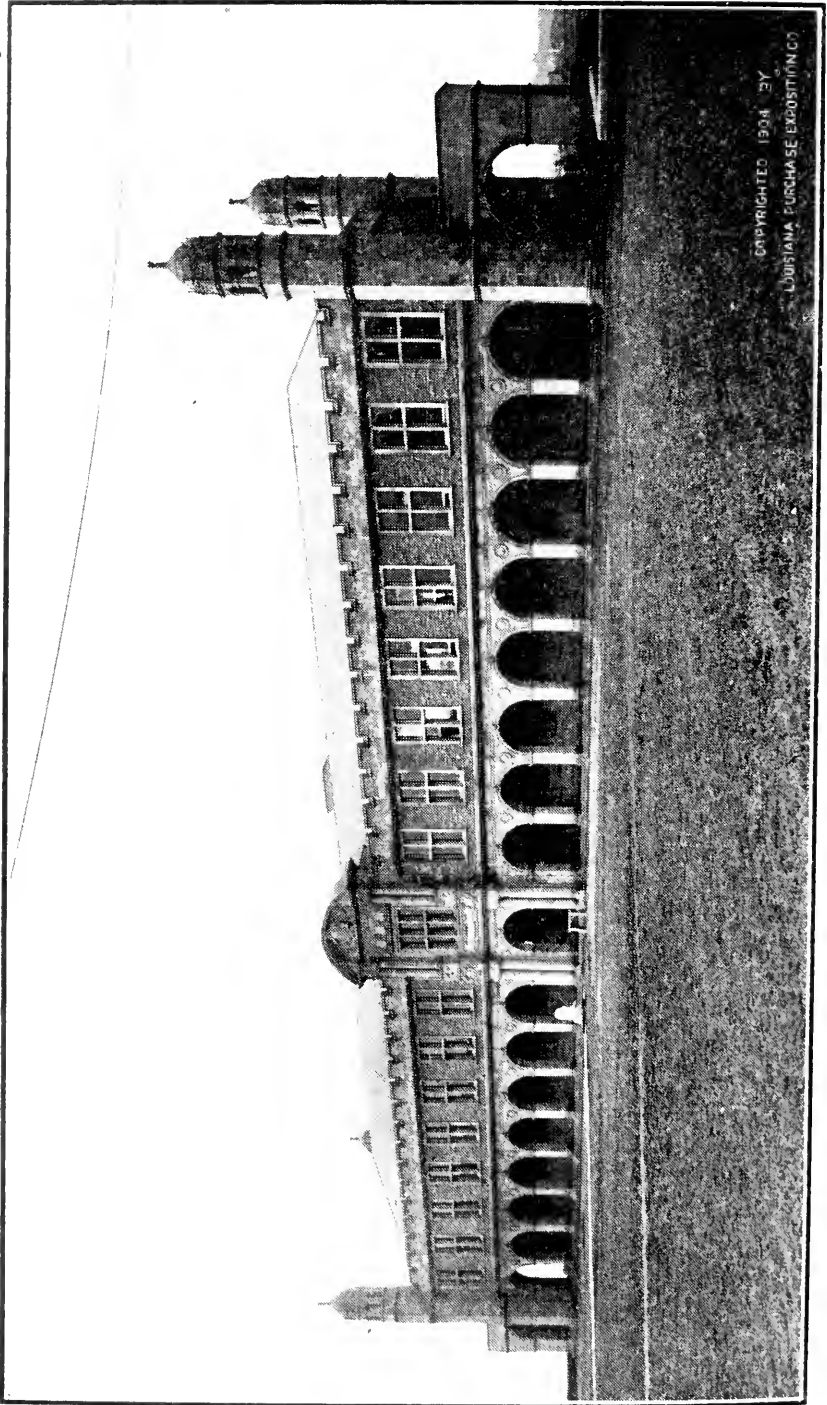

The Section of Archeology is devoted mainly to prehistoric relics regarded as records of earlier stages of human development. The exhibits in this Section supplement those of the living groups in the Section of Ethnology, and reveal the germs of se industries and devices that have enabled man to make conquest over lower nature through the control of resources and powers. Certain special series of objects are so arranged as to illustrate the earliest and greatest steps in human progress—the conquest of Fire, the development of the Knife, and the origin of the Wheel. These were the chief factors of the mechanical industries which in their perfection are displayed in the great Exhibit Palaces.

In the Section of History is pictured, largely by means of original records and maps, the most remarkable example of territorial conquest the world has thus far seen—the transformation of the Louisiana Purchase Territory from a wilderness trod only by wandering tribes and wild beasts into a family of rich commonwealths, within the space of a century.

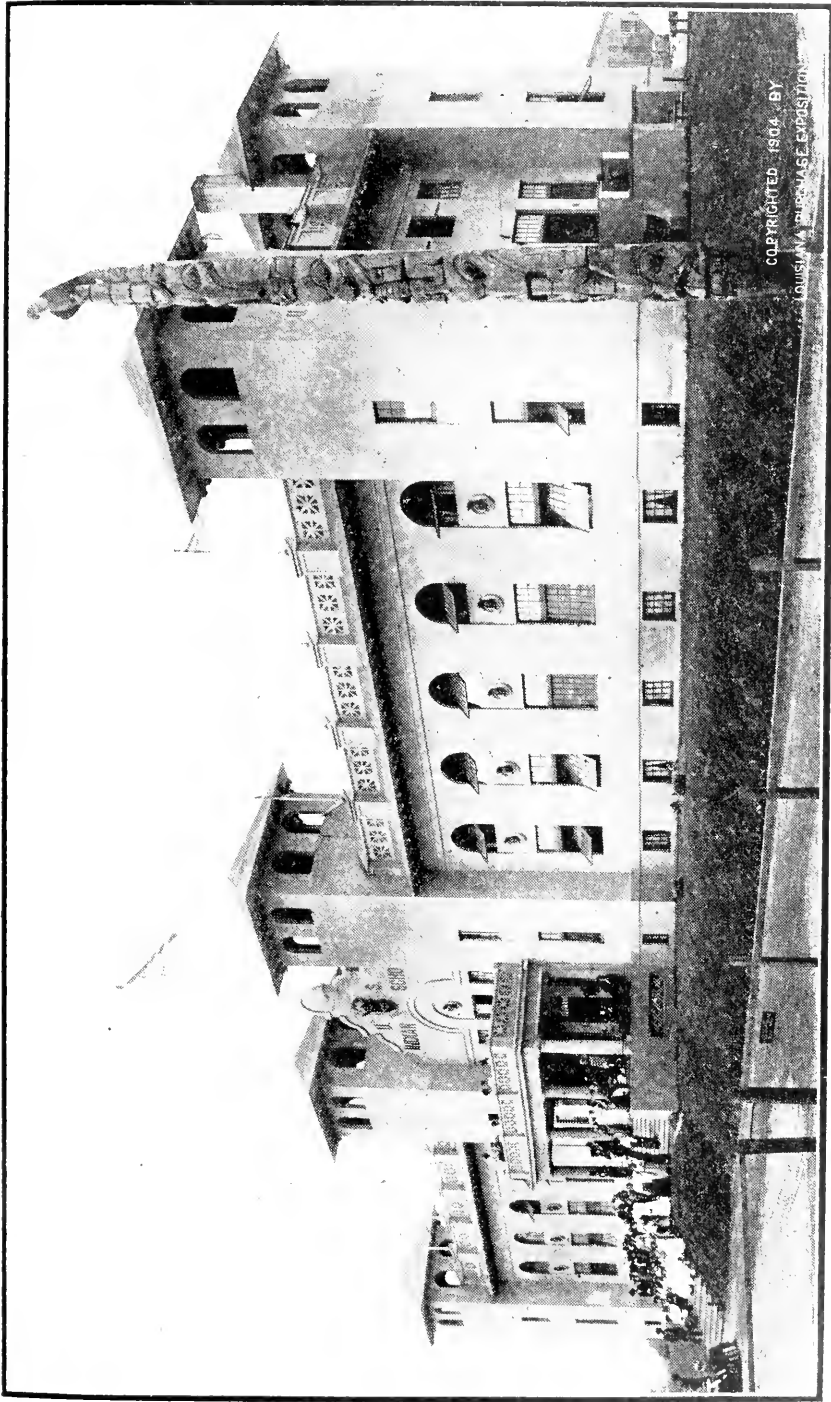

In the Section of Anthropometry definite measures and records of the types of mankind assembled on the Exposition grounds are made—i. e., such impressions as are made of the passing throng are so tabulated and arranged as to afford a means of tracing with scientific accuracy the physical as well as the intellectual development of mankind.

In the Section of Psychometry tests and measures of sense perception and of the power of coordination are made, with a view to scientific comparison of the types of mankind and the determination of the elements of intellectual character and progress.

HOW TO LOCATE AN EXHIBIT.

The exhibits in the Department of Anthropology are installed in the Anthropology Building, which is in the north and west wing of the Administration Building. This structure is divided into three sections, the Main, Lower and Upper floors. The rooms are numbered, and a consultation with the ground plan will give you immediate knowledge of the location of the room of the exhibit.

The Indian Exhibit is on the hill, west of the Anthropology Building, on Intramural Railroad, the camps of the native groups being around the Model Indian School.

Department N—Anthropology.

SECTION OF ETHNOLOGY.

DEPARTMENTAL EXHIBITS.

The exhibits are of outdoor character and comprise living groups located on the grounds of the Department south and west of the Model Indian School Building; each group occupying a house, tent, toldo, tipi, earth-lodge, wigwam, hogan, wickiup, or other customary habitation.

AINU GROUP.—Four adult men, three adult women, and two children, representing the aborigines of Japan; from the Island of Hokkaido or Yezo, whence they were brought by Professor Frederick Starr; in charge of Mr. Y. Inagaki. Notable for small stature, light skin-color, and abundant hair and beard; frequently known as "Hairy Ainu"; notable also for extensive tattooing, especially among the women, and for elaborate ceremonial habits, both social and religious.

PATAGONIAN GROUP.—Five adult men, one adult woman, and a half-grown girl of the Tehuelche tribe, known since the time of Magellan as "Patagonian Giants"; from Southern Argentina, whence they were brought by an expedition organized by the late Professor J. B. Hatcher and Doctor Victor E. Arthur Fenton; in charge of Sr. Vicente Cane. Notable for large stature, robust frame, and great physical strength, as well as for skill as hunters and horsemen.

BATWA PYGMIES.—Group of four adult men, with native productions, from Upper Kasai Valley, Central Africa; expedition conducted by Rev. S. P. Verner. The Batwa and other pygmy peoples are the aborigines of Africa, now largely displaced by peoples of ordinary stature. The pygmy tribes form the smallest known variety of mankind; they are notable also for imperfect development of language, for skill and courage in the chase, and for subserviency in the presence of larger men.

RED AFRICANS.—A small group from Kasai Valley, Central Africa, accompanying the Batwa Pygmies; brought by Rev. S. P. Verner. Notable for reddish or coppery skin-color, for fine physique, and for intelligence and force; the ruling class or caste in the southern Congo country, especially in the territory of "King" Ndombe, himself the leading representative of the type.

(None of the foregoing peoples have hitherto visited North America, and few of their representatives have ever before left their native habitat.)

COCOPA INDIANS.—A group of twenty men, women, and children from the mouth of the Rio Colorado; expedition conducted by E. C. Cushman, Jr. Notable for the difference in stature of men and women, for the large stature of the men, and for distinctive industrial, social, and fiducial customs.

CHIPPEWA (OJIBWA) INDIANS.—A group of men, women, and children, from Northern Minnesota; in charge of Hon. S. M. McCowan, Superintendent U. S. Indian Exhibit, and of the U. S. Indian Office, occupying habitations constructed after their aboriginal models, engaged in basket-making, bead work, porcupine work, skin dressing, canoe-making, metal working, the making of bows and arrows, etc.

SIOUX INDIANS.—A group of twenty-eight men, women, and children from North Dakota and South Dakota, occupying tipis; engaged in native occupations.

PAWNEE INDIANS.—A group of twelve men, women, and children from Oklahoma; collected and brought in by Doctor George A. Dorsey. The Pawnee are a typical plains tribe and dwell in an earth domicile-temple or "medicine lodge," of interest as a type of primitive construction.

WICHITA INDIANS.—A group of twelve men, women, and children from Oklahoma; brought in by Doctor George A. Dorsey. The Wichita are a Southern plains tribe; they dwell in a grass house of typical character.

ARAPAHO INDIANS.—A group of twelve men, women, and children from Oklahoma; brought in by Doctor George A. Dorsey; they occupy painted or "medicine" tipis.

CHEYENNE INDIANS.—A group of twenty men, women, and children, from Oklahoma; brought in by Doctor George A. Dorsey; in tipis.

GERONIMO AND HIS BAND.—A warrior notable for prowess and shrewdness, enabling him to resist white troops successfully for many years; with others of his tribe, including his daughter, Lina.

KICKAPOO INDIANS.—A group of men, women, and children from Kansas; brought in by Superintendent Edwards; occupying a typical bark lodge.

INDIANS OF THE DESERT.—A group of twenty Pima, Papago, and Maricopa Indians from Arizona; notable as makers of pottery and basketry.

NAVAJO INDIANS.—A group of men, women, and children from Arizona; notable as skillful horsemen, blanket weavers, and metal workers; living in typical hogans.

APACHE INDIANS.—A group of representatives of the White Mountain band from Arizona, and of the Jicarilla band from New Mexico; notable for warlike habits (their designation meaning "enemy"), for fine physique, and for skill as horsemen.

PUEBLO INDIANS.—A group of Hopi (or Moki) men, women, and children from Arizona; notable for elaborate fiducial ceremonies, and for interesting social and domestic customs.

(Most of the foregoing groups of U. S. Indians vary in number from time to time, some occasionally visiting their homes to return later or to be replaced by others.)

KLAOKWAHT INDIANS.—A group of five men and three women; brought from Vancouver Island (British Columbia) by Doctor C. F. Newcombe. The Klaokwaht are notable for light color of skin, for courage and skill in canoeing, and for an elaborate social organization maintained by arrangement of individuals and families in a tribal domicile or "longhouse," much like that of the Iroquois Indians. They are notable also for an elaborate heraldic system, including crests (or totems) of symbolic character. They occupy a typical habitation, and are engaged in accustomed industries, including the manufacture of crests and miniature totem poles; their house contains an inland-water canoe, while a great sea-canoe made from a single tree-trunk and capable of carrying thirty or forty persons in the open ocean lies alongside the house.

KWAKIUTL INDIANS.—A small group from Western Vancouver Island; brought in by Doctor C. F. Newcombe. The Kwakiutl Indians, like the Klaokwaht, are notable for a heraldic system with family crests woven into garments, carved and painted on house-fronts, displayed on head-dresses, etc. They are among the lightest in color of all American aborigines; and their ceremonial dances, music, and dramatic representations are of special interest.

INDIVIDUAL AND INSTITUTIONAL EXHIBITS

Starr, Professor Frederick, University of Chicago. Anthropology Building, Room 109.

1. Native ethnic types of Mexico, illustrated by life-size photographs in full-face and profile of the following tribes: Otomi, Tarasca, Tlaxcala, Aztec, Mixtec, Triqui, Zapotec, Mixe, Tehuantepec-Zapotec, Juave, Chontal, Cucatec, Chinantec, Chocho, Mazatec, Tepehua, Totonac, Huastec, Maya, Zoque, Tzitzil, Tzendal, and Chol. In wall frames.
2. Native Mexican fabrics, representing the Totonac, Aztec, Zatopec and Mazatec tribes. Case 1.
3. Native Mexican fabrics representing the Otomi, Tarasca and other tribes; with atlatl, apparatus for extracting fibre, etc. Case 2.

INDIAN SCHOOL SECTION

MODEL INDIAN SCHOOL

(Western End of Grounds)

The Indian School is designed to show to the public the progress made by the Indian through education in the Government Indian Schools of the United States, and also to demonstrate some of the methods of instruction in use in these schools, by means of class-room and industrial work, done by Indian pupils, under direction of teachers from various Indian schools.

All of the 257 Government Indian Schools in the U. S., which have a total enrollment of about 29,000 children, were asked to contribute to this exhibit. Many responded by sending specimens of class-room papers, drawings, needlework, laces, machinery, tools, cabinet work, baskets and beadwork, done by Indian pupils. These exhibits are placed in cases on all sides of the Building.

Three of the largest western schools are represented by industrial exhibits, demonstrations of methods by the actual work of 160 pupils. These exhibits occupy divisions on one side of the main hall:

The Chilocco School, Oklahoma, has a class in Domestic Science, in charge of Miss C. F. Peters, which gives daily demonstrations in cooking and serving food, care and use of kitchen utensils, and planning of meals and dietaries; a model dining room, in which the flooring, paper-hanging, painting, electric wiring, mahogany chairs, tables, sideboard and other furniture, and the decorated linen and china, are the work of the Chilocco pupils; a laundry fitted with the latest appliances, where a class of girls, in charge of Miss R. Daugherty, does washing and ironing; a printing department, under Mr. E. K. Miller, where the Indian School Journal is printed daily by a class of students.

Haskell Institute, Lawrence, Kansas, is represented by a domestic art class, in charge of Miss Katherine Keck, demonstrating sewing, mending, darning, embroidery and all kinds of needlework, as well as tailoring and millinery; painting, blacksmithing, and wagon-making in charge of Mr. C. F. Kaufman; manual training class, under Mr. C. F. Fitzgerald.

The Genoa School, Nebraska, has a class in harness-making, under Mr. J. McCallum.

The Sacaton (Arizona) School sends a kindergarten class of 12 little Pima Indians, 6 and 7 years of age; Miss Johnson, teacher.

The literary classroom work is under direction of Miss Scott, and consists of regular school room work by pupils of Chilocco. In contrast to this work performed by the students, the Industrial Work on the other side of the hall is done by the blanket Indians, in booths set apart for them, in exactly the same manner as on the Reservations where they live. The work, when finished, is placed on sale in the building. Members of the following named tribes are at work every day from 9:30 to 11:30 a. m., and from 2 to 4 p. m., in the main hall:

Sioux, from Rosebud Reservation, S. D.—Decorative artists with porcupine quills and beads on buckskin, manufacturers of bows, arrows, and catlinite calumets, or peace-pipes.

Apache Group, from the White Mountain Reservation, N. M.—Expert potters and basket makers, and artists in beaded buckskin.

Jicarilla Apache Group, from Dulce, N. M.—Makers of coiled basketry of a peculiar type.

Navajo Group, from Navajo Reservations in Arizona and N. M.—Noted as blanket weavers and workers in silver, shell and turquoise.

Pueblo Group, from San Juan and Acoma, N. M.—Expert potters and weavers, primitive millers and makers of the famous wafer bread.

Arapaho Group, from Arapaho and Cheyenne Reservations, Okla.—Noted for symbolically painted, quilled and beaded buckskin, and as makers of bows, arrows and flutes.

Wichita Group, from Wichita Reservation, Oklahoma.—Noted for symbolic games, and as artists in painted and beaded buckskin.

Maricopa Group, from Sacaton, Arizona.—Typical desert people, noted for watertight basketry and superior pottery.

Pima Group, from Sacaton, Arizona.—Makers of coiled baskets and pottery.

Pomo Group, from Mendocino Co., Cal.—Makers of stone and shell wampum (aboriginal currency), stone tools, musical instruments, mats, feather work, and the finest known aboriginal basketry.

These groups occupy native habitations of various types, erected by themselves on the grounds surrounding the Indian Building.

Following is the program of each day at the U. S. Indian School Building. Open to visitors from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. All exhibits inside and outside the building are free to all visitors.

The building is located on Indian Hill, near western side of Fair Grounds, on Olympia Way, between stations 6 and 7 (going west) or 5 and 6 (going east) of the Intramural Railway. Cars stop at the entrance.

SECTION OF ARCHEOLOGY

(ANTHROPOLOGY BUILDING)

DEPARTMENTAL EXHIBITS

So far as practicable the prehistoric relics to which this section is mainly devoted are arranged in such manner as to illustrate the progressive advance of mankind from lower toward higher industrial planes. As a special illustration of this progress a limited number of synthetic series of artifacts produced by more primitive men are so arranged as to indicate the genesis and earlier development of industrial devices which have served to revolutionize the occupations and ideas of mankind. The artifacts arranged in these series have been selected from the leading museums of the country through the courtesy of their representative officials, viz.: the Museum of the Missouri Historical Society, St. Louis; Field Columbian Museum, Chicago; the United States National Museum, Washington, and the American Museum of Natural History, New York. Individual specimens or small lots have also been obtained from various individuals and private collections. Most of the relics are prehistoric; yet these are supplemented (with the view of facilitating interpretation) in a number of cases by artifacts found in use among primitive peoples still living; for it is, perhaps, the most important generalization of the Science of Man that the various races and peoples advance along nearly parallel paths, so that the industries and ideas of living savages and barbarians represent fairly the industries and ideas prevailing among the prehistoric ancestors of more advanced peoples. Most of the artifacts introduced in these series are originals; a few are replicas—these being so labeled. The plan for these synthetic series has been carried out by Mr. Gerard Fowke.

FIRE.—Among primitive men fire is regarded as animate and closely akin either to deified animals or to mankind; and its production is regarded as analogous to vital reproduction. These concepts are measurably illustrated by the fire-making apparatus in the series. The simplest device is the hand fire-drill, in which (among living savages) the horizontal stick of soft wood (or hearth) is considered female, and the vertical stick of hard wood (or drill), which is twirled between the hands of one or two operators, is regarded as male; more advanced types of this device are the thong fire-drill and the bow fire-drill. In these types the vertical stick, or fire-drill proper, is allied in thought and speech to the arrow, harpoon, piercer or awl, horn or other organ, etc., all considered to be endowed with masculine attributes; while the hearth is similarly allied to the mortar or metate, the food basket, the water jar, the flower, various organic structures, etc., to all of which feminine attributes are imputed. Another primitive type is the fire-plow, also consisting of a hearth of soft wood and a pointed instrument of hard wood or other material in which the friction required for first producing and then igniting the powdered wood is given by reciprocal in lieu of rotary movement; the associated ideas and terms being analogous to those of the fire-drill. Two other primitive devices are found in regions in which reeds or cane or bamboo abounds. The first of these is the so-called fire-pump, a seemingly elaborate apparatus, yet one exceedingly simple in the light of primitive ideas of fire-making as a process of reproduction; the principal piece is a hollow cylinder consisting of a section of cane fitted with a piston and operated by driving the piston forcibly into the cylinder until the friction and heat of the compressed air ignite the pith-powder at the joint. This device is connected with an early stage of the development of the Pipe; and the association of ideas and speech as to gender is as in the fire-drill. A collateral device is the fire-saw: in this the stationary part is a section (or more commonly a half-section split lengthwise) of bamboo or cane, laid on a smooth surface with the rounded side up; the movable part is a sharp-edged piece of hard wood or other material drawn to and fro across the stationary part with a sawing motion until a notch or kerf is cut and the frictional heat ignites the pith-powder and wood-dust. All known savages use one or another of these fire-making devices, while all advanced peoples use improved devices; so that Man may be defined as the fire-making animal—and the means by which Fire must have been originally subjugated are indicated by these devices. The more advanced apparatus includes pyrite and flint, flint and steel, etc. (Anthropology Building, Room 102, Cases 1-4.)

KNIFE.—While no animal below Man uses the sharp edge except as an organic structure (like tooth or nail), very few human tribes have been found lacking the knife sense; none are known without ability to use the sharp point (awl or piercer), though in lower tribes these are actual or emblematic organs—tooth, claw, mandible, etc. In a tribe in which the knife sense is lacking, the chief tool is a waveworn cobblestone of convenient size and weight, spoken of as a "tooth (of the sea)," and is used for bruising tissue, crushing bones, grinding seeds, and various other processes, i. e., practically it is a universal implement. In this tribe the sharp edge is feared and dreaded, and any stone edged by accidental fracture is discarded. Through continued use the natural cobblestones are gradually worn into a distinctive shape and acquire polished surfaces; they represent the protolithic type of implement. The next step in development is taken when the mind becomes acute enough and the hand deft enough to utilize the sharp edge produced by accidental fracture; at first the implement is merely a cleft pebble or cobblestone, but with increasing skill the stone is shaped and flaked into a form found serviceable for a particular purpose; and the types are differentiated into scrapers, knives, arrowpoints or spearheads, celts, hatchets or tomahawks, spades, etc. With increasing skill the rudely chipped stone is flaked and finished in such manner as to form highly effective implements; if the material is fit, the rough surface left by the chipping is at first worn smooth by use and afterward ground and polished by design in mimicry of the aimless smoothing; and the fiducial motives dominating the primitive mind find expression in large or elaborate forms unfit for practical uses and made (as ascertained through researches among living tribes) for use as emblems of power or for working magic—among the American aborigines they are known as "strong medicine." The stones wrought by chipping or flaking in accordance with preconceived designs, whether polished or not, form technolithic implements. The series exhibited comprises artifacts of stone, cold-wrought metal, wood, etc., as well as of hot-wrought metal shaped first in imitation of the stone artifacts and afterward in forms to which the hard and malleable metal is adapted. The series is arranged in the Anthropology Building, Room 102, Cases 5-8.

WHEEL.—The prototype of this mechanical device is a stone disc used in games played as divinatory ceremonies rather than tests of skill. In more fully developed types the disc is perforated (at first by wear in use and afterward by design) and converted into a ring; sometimes the ring is enlarged and the stone replaced by wood, while the opening may be partially covered with a network of thongs. As the game is commonly played a javelin or arrow is projected at the disc or ring with the object of overturning or penetrating it; and in many tribes there are associations in thought and speech between the disc or ring and the bow, food-basket, water-jar, flower, and other objects deemed feminine, and also between the javelin or arrow, and the firedrill, tooth, lightning, serpent, hunter, and other things deemed masculine. Another type of the primitive device is the football, to which is imputed the power of drawing forward racers or exhausted wanderers; and still another is the handball, as used among primitive peoples, together with dice, etc. The next stage in development arises in the moving of heavy beams or stones in accordance with rituals for constructional purposes; here the mystical power or "medicine" imputed to the device is invoked, and the propulsion of the mass is aided by placing the discs or balls beneath. In the next stage, rollers or cylinders are used first as mainly votive and later as mainly mechanical devices; then the cylinders are in-cut, and later reduced to one-piece axle-wheels out of which the separate wheel and axle develop. This series is exhibited in the Anthropology Building, Room 104, Case 1-4.

PIPE.—Two primitive fire-making devices consist essentially of sections of reed, cane, or bamboo; and under primitive association of ideas the reed is used also as a device for preserving fire, i. e., for keeping or carrying a coal smoldering in the pith above a joint and occasionally revived by the breath of the bearer; the coal being viewed as a sacred or deific thing, and the burning as an invocation or propitiation—as making “strong medicine”—intensified when fragrant or aromatic substances are burned as incense. To the primitive mind the occasional burning through of the joint, allowing free circulation of air and consequent enlivening of the coal, also increase the mystery or “medicine”; and the imitation of this natural process is natural and logical. The Ainu still kindle the spark produced by any fire-generating apparatus by means of inhalation through a section of vine of spongy or porous texture. The next stage is represented by the cane “cigarette” used ceremonially, e. g., among the Papago Indians, with any aromatic material used as incense and blown toward the Four Quarters rather than inhaled; and it is an easy step thence to the straight-tube pipe of cane, animal bone, hollowed stick, burned clay, and stone, out of which the pipe was differentiated through various forms, both practical and totemic or ceremonial. While certain of the steps toward the development of the pipe took place in various countries, the presence of tobacco—a non-poisonous aromatic plant—in the Western Hemisphere led to a higher development of smoking among the American aborigines than among other primitive peoples; so that the New World gave to the Old tobacco and the pipe in addition to corn and other products. The series of artifacts illustrating the development of the Pipe and the associations with fire-making apparatus, etc., are installed in the Anthropology Building, Room 104, Cases 5-8.

INDIVIDUAL AND INSTITUTIONAL EXHIBITS

- Davenport Academy of Science, Davenport, Iowa. Miss Elizabeth D. Putnam, president, aided by Doctor J. H. Paarman, Curator. Anthropology Building, Room 109.
1. Collection of typical copper implements, ceremonial objects, etc., from Davenport mounds.
 2. Typical mound cranium.
 3. Mound fabrics, preserved by copper oxide.
 4. Collection of typical mound pottery.
 5. Inscribed tablets of limestone and slate.
 6. Collection of stone pipes from mounds, including “elephant pipes.”
 7. Diagrams and descriptions of mounds in vicinity of Davenport.
- Phillips Academy, Andover, Massachusetts. Department of Archaeology; Charles Peabody director. Anthropology Building, Room 109.
1. Plan of Jacobs’ Cavern, McDonald County, Missouri. On north wall.
 2. Relics from Jacobs’ Cavern, Missouri, including stalagmite, bones, shells, stone implements, wrought bone and shell, etc. Case 1.
 3. Relics from adobe ruins near Phoenix, Arizona, including stone implements and ceremonial objects; cremation residua; animal effigies in stone; carved shell; grooved stones; discs, etc. Case 2.
4. Typical and rare relics, including abnormal crania and other bones, developmental series of ceremonial objects, etc. Case 3.
- Weatherford & Vail, Flagstaff, Arizona. Anthropology Building, Room 109. Prehistoric cache, comprising painted olla, ceremonial sash (ten yards long) and beads.
- Zeller, Julian T., St. Louis. Prehistoric cradle-basket from San Juan County, Utah.
- Wyman Brothers, Chicago. Anthropology Building, Room 107.
1. Collection of native copper implements and weapons.
 2. Collection of silver crosses and other objects used by aborigines of the Lake Region.
 3. Collection of historical Indian treaty medals.
 4. Collection of wampum treaty belts and strings.
 5. Ms. Treaties with Indians.
 6. Collection of Indian pipes.
- Aldrich, Charles, Des Moines. Anthropology Building, Room 102. Ceremonial grooved stone axe (largest known; weight 30 pounds.) Case 6.
- Roth, Joseph, Florida. Iron brank; used in early slavery. Room 104.

GENERAL EXHIBITS

STATE AND NATIONAL

OHIO

The Ohio State Archeological and Historical Society, Wm. C. Mills, Supt.,
Anthropology Building, Rooms 106, 108, 110 and 112.

1. Collection of human crania taken from the mounds and village sites in Ohio. Case 1, Shelves 1 and 2.
2. Hematite implements, consisting of celts, plummets or pendants, cones, grooved axes and pestles, found in Scioto County, Ohio. With the hematites are placed pendants and cones made from quartz, granite and fireclay, found in the same county. Case 1, Shelf 3.
3. Discoidal gaming stones and related prehistoric relics found in the central and southern parts of Ohio. Case 1, Shelf 4.
4. Baum Village Site Explorations. This village site is located near the small town of Bourneville, Ross County, Ohio. During the explorations 140 skeletons were unearthed and more than 200 subterranean storehouses were examined, bringing to light many interesting facts concerning the home life of these primitive people. The artifacts in bone were especially abundant, such as scrapers made of the metapodial bone of the deer and elk, shown in Case 3, which is perhaps the largest collection of the kind in the world. Perfect fishhooks, as well as unfinished specimens showing various stages in fashioning the hook, are shown in case 3. Ornaments made of shell, bone and teeth are shown in Case 2. Cases 2 and 3.
5. Types of prehistoric copper implements and ornaments taken from Ohio mounds and graves. The cache of copper artifacts shown in this case is unique. It was found outside of the walls of Fort Ancient. The objects were bent and hammered together, evidently to destroy their identity. Silver nuggets taken from a mound in the Snake Den group are also shown in this case. Case 4.
6. Types of grooved axes and celts from the mounds and village sites of Ohio. However, the very large axes are seldom met with in the mounds but are usually found upon the surface of the ground, often remote from the villages. Case 5.
7. Types of spearheads and knives found in every portion of the state. Caches of flint implements from mounds and village sites. Case 6.
8. Types of pipes found in Ohio. The large pipes are usually effigies representing animals and birds as well as the human face and form. Case 7.
9. Pipes found in Scioto County, Ohio. This county is noted for the many beautiful forms of pipes, found in the mounds and village sites, especially the effigy type. The pipes were collected by Mr. S. P. Adams, Portsmouth, Ohio. Case 8.
10. Harness mound explorations. This mound is a remarkable one in many respects, having been partially examined and described by Squier and Davis, 1846, and since that time many archaeologists have examined the mound and many artifacts have been removed. The examination of the mound in 1903 by the Ohio State Archeological and Historical Society has brought to light many copper implements and ornaments, such as needles, axes, ear ornaments, pendants and breast plates; gorgets made of ocean shells and human jaws; beads and ornaments made of fossil shark teeth and fossil ivory; cut forms in mica and carved bone as well as beads made from ocean shell and pearls of the fresh water mussel. Case 9.
11. Explorations of the Adena mound. This mound was located near the city of Chillicothe, Ross County, Ohio, and was 26 1-2 feet high, containing upwards of 6,000 cubic yards of earth. All the artifacts in case 10 were removed from this mound. The most interesting of the many specimens removed is the human effigy pipe which is considered the finest specimen of aboriginal carving taken from an Ohio mound. Case 10.

12. Prehistoric ceremonials, amulets, gorgets and objects made of slate, including many unique designs. Case 11.
13. Explorations of the Gartner Mound. The examination of the mound brought to light 42 skeletons and a large platform covered with incinerated human remains. With the burials were placed many interesting specimens, such as pottery, carved bone, pipes, crescents and gorgets of shell. Case 12.
14. Explorations of the Gartner Village Site. The artifacts from this village are quite numerous and especially rich in bone implements and ornaments, such as large scrapers, awls, pins, needles, fishhooks, bone arrow points and various ornaments made from bone, shell and stone. A complete account of the explorations can be found in the publications of the society. Case 13.
15. Types of Ohio pottery from mounds and graves. Case 14, Shelves 1 and 2.
16. Large ocean shells found in the mounds and villages, also gorgets and beads made from various kinds of ocean shells. Case 14, Shelf 3.
17. Typical collection from Franklin County, Ohio. Varieties of flint from Flint Ridge, Ohio. Case 14, Shelf 4.
18. Types of long-cylindrical and bell-shaped pestles found in Ohio. Case 14, Shelf 5.
19. Collection of deer horns taken from the refuse pits. The tines were removed from the horns and used in making arrow points. Case 14, Shelf 5.
20. Publications of the Ohio State Archaeological and Historical Society, Vol. 1 to 12. "Archeological History of Ohio," by Gerard Fowke. "Ohio Centennial Celebration 1903;" "George Rogers Clark's Conquest of the Illinois," by Consul Willshire Butterfield. "Explorations of Adena Mound," by Wm. C. Mills. "Explorations of the Gartner mound and village site," by Wm. C. Mills.
21. Relief map of the great Serpent mound and drawing of Serpent mound park, Adams County, Ohio. The Serpent mound was first described by Squier and Davis in 1848. Saved from destruction in 1885 by F. W. Putnam, professor of archaeology Harvard University. The serpent and surroundings are now included in a park which was secured by subscription obtained by ladies of Boston in 1887, when it was deeded to the trustees of the Peabody museum, Harvard University. Exempted from taxation by act of the legislature of Ohio in 1888. Transferred by Harvard University, May, 1900, to the Ohio State Archeological and Historical Society for perpetual care as a free public park.
22. Relief map of Fort Hill, Highland County, Ohio. Fort Hill is situated about 5 miles north of the Serpent mound. Height of walls, 6 to 10 feet; entire length, 8,582 feet; area enclosed, 35 acres.
23. Large drawing of Fort Ancient, Warren County, Ohio. Fort Ancient is the largest prehistoric fortification in Ohio. About 100 acres are enclosed by the walls. By an act of the Ohio legislature, April 28, 1890, the fort and immediate surrounding territory, comprising some 287 acres, was purchased by the state and turned over to the Ohio State Archeological and Historical Society to be made into a free public park.
24. Large stone mortars placed on stands. The mortars were taken from Ohio village sites.
25. A series of large photographs showing the prehistoric earthworks and villages explored in recent years.
26. A series of maps of Ohio showing the location of the Gartner mound, Adena mound, Baum Village site, Harness mound, Fort Ancient and the great Serpent mound.

LOUISIANA.

- Louisiana State Commission. (Installed by Professor George T. Williamson, Anthropology Building, Room 109.)
1. Stone axes, celts, and related aboriginal relics, from Louisiana. Case 1.
2. Chipped arrowheads, spear points, flakes, spalls, cores, and rejects, from Louisiana. Case 2.
3. Collection of prehistoric pottery, from Louisiana. Case 3.
4. Collection of discoid stones. Case 3.
5. Collection of hematites showing process of nodulation continued after shapement. Case 3.
6. Stone and pottery pipes and related relics. Case 3.

7. Collection of rude stone implements from native camp sites in Louisiana Case 4.
8. Collection of Choctaw and Chitimache basketry. Cases 5, 6, and walls.
9. Native mealing apparatus, from Louisiana. Shelves.

NEW MEXICO

Territorial Commission of New Mexico (Fred Harvey collection, arranged by J. F. Huckel). A collection of Navajo blankets, Apache baskets and other artifacts produced by Southwestern and Pacific coast tribes, chiefly before white settlement. Anthropology building, Room 111.

ARGENTINE

LOCATION: Argentine Pavilion. (Upper Floor.)

Collection of prehistoric relics, chiefly from the Calchaqui country, supplemented by collections from Ancon and Chimbote, Peru. Installed and maintained under the joint auspices of the Argentine Commission and the collector.

SECTION OF HISTORY

Speaking generally, each State has installed its own history exhibit in its own State Building; the special motive of the exhibit in the Anthropology Building is to bring together the records of the exploration and early settlement of the Louisiana Territory, of its actual transfer from France to the United States, and of the early stages of its development from a vast wilderness to a realm of rich commonwealths.

MISSOURI HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

LOCATION: Anthropology Building, North Upper Hall, Rooms 203-5-7-9-11.

The exhibits are designed to illustrate important steps first in the settlement and later in the development of the original Louisiana Territory and its present metropolis from the original condition to the present state of commonwealth and city. Accordingly, the exhibits are historical in the broadest sense. They form a loan collection contributed by the Missouri Historical Society, in which the movement for the Louisiana Purchase Exposition originated. They were installed by officers of the Society, with Miss Mary Louise Dalton, Custodian of Exhibits, in whose charge the collections are maintained.

Aboriginal Relics.

The Indian relics are designed especially to illustrate the native industries observed by early settlers. The collections were arranged by D. I. Bushnell, Doctor C. Peterson, Doctor W. F. Parks, and General Gates P. Thurston.

ABLE CASE 1. Thurston Collection. Pipes and pottery from stone graves in Tennessee.

ABLE CASE 2. Thurston Collection. Shell gorgets and ceremonial or symbolic ornaments of copper, bone, and stone: stone celts, tubes and discoidal stones: a collection of chipped flint representing the highest development of the art.

(The relics in Cases 1 and 2 were loaned by General Thurston of Nashville, whose collection of chipped flint and pottery from prehistoric sites in the territory tributary to the Mississippi is unique.)

ABLE CASE 3. Chipped flint ceremonial or symbolic objects from the region tributary to the Missouri: including the Meadows' cache of 45 objects from Tennessee and the largest known flint sword (27½ inches in length).

ABLE CASE 4. Hematite axes and pendants, stone pipes, bone awls and needles, bone fishhooks, shell ornaments, etc. Also models of Cahokia Mound.

ABLE CASE 5. Spear heads, arrow points, knives, perforators, etc.

TABLE CASE 6. Stone agricultural implements; hoes, spades, etc., largely peculiar to the immediate vicinity of St. Louis.

TABLE CASE 7. A typical collection of stone discoids, pestles, hammers, etc.

TABLE CASE 8. Grooved axes, celts, gouges, scrapers, etc.; including a celt 15½ inches long, 6 inches wide, and 3 inches thick, weighing twenty-two and a half pounds, and a grooved axe from the Bushnell collection 12 inches long, 6 inches wide and weighing 13½ pounds; also the Clayton stone axe, taken from beneath 14 feet of undisturbed loess.

WALL CASES 1, 2 and 3. Prehistoric pottery from regions tributary to St. Louis.

CENTERPIECE. Aboriginal salt pan 35 inches in diameter and 7 inches deep; with three meal stones and a stone mortar.

VATICAN ARCHIVES

CASE A.

Earliest Papal Documents regarding America. Letters of the 13th Century, regarding Greenland under various pontificates and referring to the appointments of Bishops, etc., etc.; letters from Alexander VI and other popes to Ferdinand and Isabella; the famous letter giving the line of demarkation of Spanish and Portuguese dominion in the New World.

CASE B, UPPER.

Selected letters from Papal letter books 13th and 14th Centuries (Regesta Pontificum); copies by special scribes in special books. As these records cover the period between the pontificates of Innocent III and Urban V. (1210-1370) they are of interest as showing the varying style of the scribes and the various forms of Pontifical chancellors.

CASE A, LOWER.

Roll of Josue. (Vat. Palat. 431). Roll of Parchment, 10 metres, 48 centimr. long, incomplete, executed in the 7th Century, belonged to Ulrich Fugger, afterwards to the Heidelberg Library. It consists of 15 sheets as follows: 1st sheet—Spies are sent to Jericho—they are pursued—the children of Israel prepare to pass the Jordan. 2nd.—The Jordan is miraculously dried up. Twelve stones are placed in the midst of the river and twelve others are taken out to be set up for a monument of the miracle. 3rd.—Josue is at the head of the Israelites—a monument is erected in Galzal. The people are circumcised. 4th.—The Israelites march around the walls of Jericho for the last time. 5th.—Jericho falls into the hands of Josue. 6th.—Josue sends spies to view the country of Hai.

CASE B, LOWER.

The men return and propose to him to send only 3,000 fighting men. Their march against Hai and their defeat by the men of Hai. 8th.—Josue rends his garment and falls on the ground before the Ark of the Covenant. 9th.—Josue asks Achan to confess his sin and at the Valley of Achor all Israel stone him. 10th.—The Lord speaks to Josue. Hai is taken and the city is burnt.

CASE C, LOWER.

1.—Josue hangs the king. He builds an altar to the Lord in Mt. Hebal. The inhabitants of Egypt and Gabaon send to Josue and ask him to come and save them; for all the kings of the Ammorhites were gathering against them. The battle of Gabaa. The Sun and Moon stood still until the people revenged themselves upon their enemies. 13th.—God casts down upon the enemies of the Israelites great stones from heaven. The five kings hide themselves in a cavern—it is reported to Josue, who orders them to be slain and their bodies to be covered with stones.

Miniatures of Christian Topography. (9th Century). The author, Cosmas, was a monk about whose personality little is known, lived in the 6th century, traveled through Syria and India, lived in Alexandria, Egypt. His desire in this work was to harmonize cosmography with the Bible account, in opposition to the Ptolemaic theory, which he believed to be Pagan. Hence the title, "Topographia Christiana;" the original in the Vatican Library is of the 9th Century. It is a fine specimen of Byzantine art and came into the possession of the Vatican under Sixtus IV. (14th Century.)

CASE D, LOWER.

The Famous Greek Vatican Bible. (Vat. Arch. 1209), known as Codex B., written in the 4th Century, Circa A. D. 350. This is the oldest copy of the Holy Bible extant. One other disputes its antiquity, that is, the Codex Sinaiticus, preserved in the Royal Library of St. Petersburg. The date of the acquisition of this valuable MSS. by the Vatican Library is not definitely known, but it is found mentioned in the catalogues of the library A. D. 1478.

CASE D, LOWER.

Palimpsest MSS. of Cicero's "De Republica." Owing to a scarcity of parchment in the monastery of Bobbio, Italy, founded by the celebrated Irish monk, St. Columbanus, the scribes washed and scraped the parchment on which was written Cicero's Treatise "De Republica" in order to have material upon which to copy the "Commentary of St. Augustine on the Psalms." This written-over copy (palimpsest) of the original text of Cicero's great treatise (4th Century) was acquired by Paul V. in the 17th Century for the Vatican Library. The celebrated Mai, librarian of the Vatican, discovered a method by which the original writing was restored without injuring the text that had been written over it.

CASE C, UPPER.

Miniatures of the Greek Psalter. (Vat. Palat. Gr. 481) of the 12th Century, once the property of Ulrich Fugger and the Heidelberg Library. Fugger was a rich banker of Heidelberg in the 16th Century.

Miniatures from the Ottobonian Pontifical or Book of Rites (Vat. 501). Pope Innocent VIII, wishing to establish uniformity of ceremonies, gave orders to the famous Bouchard, Master of Ceremonies, to compile the book; it was printed in 1585, the text being divided into three parts; but the Codex Ottobonus contains the third part only, being transcribed from a printed copy in the year 1489. It was prepared for the Bishop of Symio to be given to the King of Hungary, Matthew Corvinus. It was afterwards purchased by Alexander VIII. (Ottoboni) in 1609 and Benedict XIV secured it for the Vatican Library. The miniatures were probably painted by Antonio of Monza.

Folio 4. Stanze of Raphael.

Folio 5. The Dispute in the Camera Segnatura.

Folio 6. Sala Sistina of the Vatican Library built by Pope Sixtus V., 1588. The foundation of the Vatican Library is ascribed to Pope Hilary, A. D. 461, and was originally situated in the Lateran Palace. During the Papal residence at Avignon it was removed to that city, but was brought back to Rome under Pope Martin V. It was instituted on a firm foundation by Pope Nicholas V. and when Constantinople fell into the hands of the Turks in 1453, this Pope showered hospitality on the learned refugees from the Orient. With their exodus from the East came many valuable codices and manuscripts of great antiquity and value, which eventually found their way into the Papal Collection. The Vatican Library was enlarged and enriched by successive Popes, notably by Calixtus III and Sixtus IV. It was Sixtus V., however, who erected the present magnificent pile with the aid of the great architect Fontana. Paul V. added to it the Pontifical archives and under Gregory VI the Biblioteca Palatina, through the generosity of Maximilian, Duke of Bavaria, was added to the collection. Another notable addition to these treasures was the purchase by Alexander VII of the Library of the Dukes of Urbino. It is in the large hall of this library that the gifts of the various rulers of the world are placed on exhibition. The Vatican Library was first opened to the public by the late Pope Leo XIII, and its treasures made available to scholars and students of history. The Library now contains more than 300,000 printed volumes and considerably more than 50,000 codices and manuscripts.

MOSAICS.

ROOM 210.

Mosaics (Gr. Mousaikos, pertaining to the Muses) existed in Rome towards the end of the Republic, Pliny mentions that the first remarkable specimen of this work in the Eternal City was a floor of inlaid marble in the temple of Jupiter Capitolinus. The art rapidly developed under the empire, especially during the first three centuries of the Christian era. The material of the early mosaics was composed of small cubes of different colored marbles, the earliest being confined to the three colors, white, black and yellow, the designs were commonly geometrical, but gradually figures, flowers, animals, etc., were introduced. Glass began to be used as a material in the making of mosaics at the end of the third century. In the reign of Constantine, this method of decoration became quite prominent in Christian art. From being used to ornament pavements and floors it passed to arch and vault and walls of the newly erected Christian Basilicas. This art continued to flourish during the Middle Ages and, at period of the Renaissance, it may be said to have reached its perfection in the adornment of St. Peter's. It was desired by the projectors of this monument of art, St. Peter's Basilica, that some method of decoration should be chosen that would be impervious to time and the elements; the Mosaic was the only decoration with these requisites, hence, to Pope Sixtus V (1585-1590) we owe the origin of the modern school of Mosaic work, the so-called "Studio dei Mosaici" for the preparation of pictures to decorate the arches, vaults and altars of the great cathedral of Christendom. Under Leo XII this society or guild was permanently established in the Vatican under the title of "Fabbrica di San Pietro." The purpose, therefore, of this institute of art, is that of restoring and keeping in repair the mosaics that exist, of the ancient churches of Rome. It is in no sense commercial; these works exhibited at the World's Fair are sent only as specimens of work done in leisure hours by the artists of St. Peter's. They are the usual gifts of the Popes to the rulers of the states of Christendom. The Mosaics on exhibition are composed of glass (smalto) a mixture of different minerals, earth and sand, subjected to intense heat in specially constructed furnaces. The shades of color being produced by varying degrees of heat. For delicate work requiring small proportions a special kind of glass called "filato" is used (18th Century). The process is, briefly, as follows: A frame work is made which is filled with plaster, when the plaster is dry, the design of the picture is drawn upon it, then little by little a very small section of plaster is removed and in its place a small piece of glass mosaic previously carefully shaped in the required form is filled with a species of stucco. When all the space is filled with these small pieces of glass the surface of the picture is leveled and highly polished with emery powder until the surface reaches the desired lustre. In the Roman Mosaic Laboratory 22,000 different shades of color are manufactured. The present director under whose supervision these Mosaics are made is Prof. Salvatore Nobile.

SPECIAL EXHIBIT.

THE VICTORIAN JUBILEE TRIBUTES. (QUEEN'S JUBILEE PRESENTS).

Exhibited by special favor of His Royal Majesty Edward VII, through arrangement effected by Miss Florence Hayward, Special Commissioner.

HALL OF CONGRESSES, LIBRARY BUILDING.

The Royal Presents included in this collection, by the gracious permission of His Majesty King Edward VII., chiefly consist of gifts made to Her Majesty, the late Queen Victoria, on the occasion of the Jubilee Celebrations of 1887 and 1897. Of these the greater number have come from India, where native princes of all grades and representatives of all nationalities and religions vied with each other in offering to Her Majesty the splendid tribute of her Indian Empire.

These Indian presents are of great interest, not merely on account of the precious metals and rare woods in which they are often worked, but as showing how in recent years European ideas have influenced native Indian art, which, however, in many instances, is represented in its most characteristic and unaffected form.

The remainder of the collection includes gifts offered by the representatives of the British Colonies, many of them richly illuminated addresses, often enclosed in caskets handsomely worked in metal or in native woods, or, as in the case of Cape Colony, represented by a magnificent screen of ostrich feathers, by objects which recall an important industry of the Colony.

Many of the presents were exhibited at the Imperial Institute in connection with the Jubilee of 1897, and a certain number were afterwards shown in the Branch of the Victoria and Albert Museum at Bethnal Green.

These presents form only a small proportion of the thousands sent from every part of the British Empire, which are now included in the Royal collections at Buckingham Palace, Windsor Castle, Osborne and Sandringham.

The selection and arrangement of the present collection has been entrusted by His Majesty the King to Professor WYNDHAM DUNSTAN, F.R.S., Director of the Imperial Institute, and Sir C. PURDON CLARKE, C.I.E., F.S.A., Director of the Victoria and Albert Museum.

SECTIONS OF ANTHROPOMETRY AND PSYCHOMETRY.

LOCATION: Lower Floor, Anthropology Building.

These Sections comprise the sole agencies for research in the Exposition. The primary motive of the Sections is to exhibit apparatus for and processes of determining and recording the physical and intellectual characteristics of the race-types and culture-types assembled on the Exposition grounds. The Sections are housed on the first floor of the Anthropology Building, each occupying an exhibit hall with adjacent laboratory. The exhibits and experiments in both Sections are in charge of Doctor R. S. Woodworth, Superintendent of Psychometry, and Mr. Frank G. Bruner, Assistant in Charge of Anthropometry.

ANTHROPOMETRIC APPARATUS AND TESTS.

Rooms 7, 9, 11.

DIMENSIONAL MEASURES.—Stature standing and sitting; arm spread; girth of body and limbs; proportional measures of parts; weight.

FORMAL MEASURES.—Determination of head form; measurements of facial angle, photographic and otherwise.

STRUCTURAL DETERMINATIONS.—Skin-color; color and character of dermal appendages; attitude of eyes; number and form of teeth.

FUNCTIONAL DETERMINATIONS.—Respiration; circulation; body temperature.

PSYCHOMETRIC APPARATUS AND TESTS.

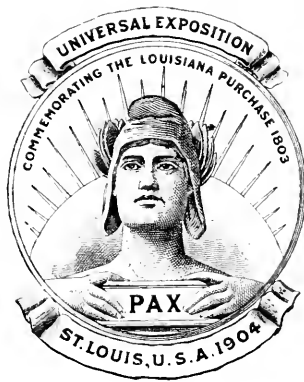

Rooms 1, 3, 5.

SIGHT.—Range of vision; quality of vision, and color-blindness. Room 1 is fitted as a dark room; by means of lantern and gratings the colors of the spectrum are thrown on a screen, when the subject tested indicates the points where coloration disappears at both the red and blue ends. On the same spectrum the subject points out the limits of the green area. The tests will indicate the relative prevalence of color-blindness as well as acuity of vision among the different races and peoples. Tests for color-blindness will also be made by means of pebbles of various colors.

HEARING.—Acuity of audition; auditory range. The tests are designed to determine both individual and racial variations in acuteness of hearing and the power to discriminate sounds. Acuity is tested by means of a Politzer hummer, and discrimination of notes by means of the Edelman model of the Galton whistle.

SENSE REACTION.—Measurement of reaction time: effected by means of a sounder, telegraph key, Hipp chromoscope, and other apparatus. Intensity of reaction: determined through (1) steadiness of position, measured by means of a perforated metallic plate connected electrically with a metallic needle-point and ribbon kymograph; and (2) accuracy of movement, ascertained by means of a target and pointer used by the subject blindfolded, and by other special apparatus.

SENSORY-MOTOR REACTIONS.—Rate: measured by means of a tapper or telegraph key electrically connected with the ribbon kymograph. Form: determined by the manipulation of geometric blocks.

INTRODUCTION.

BY HOWARD J. ROGERS, CHIEF.

The Department of Social Economy is installed in the south corridor of the Education Building facing Art Hill. For convenience in installation, as well as for the observation of the four main divisions of the Department, the exhibit is divided into four sections, viz: Social Economy proper, Charities and Correction, Hygiene, Municipal Improvement. The first section, Social Economy proper, contains the exhibits allied to the following general subjects: "Study and investigation of social and economic conditions," "Economic resources and organization," "State regulation of industry and labor," "Organization of industrial workers," "Methods of industrial remuneration," "Co-operative institutions," "Provident institutions," "Housing of the working classes," "The liquor question," "General betterment movements." These exhibits are grouped about the south central entrance of the building.

The Charities and Correction exhibit includes a collective exhibit from the institutions of the country and from state and city departments, demonstrating the work of organized charity and the great advance which has been made in that subject in the last decade. Allied with this is the correction work of the country. This exhibit occupies the southeast corner of the building, and also the southeast entrance as installed by the International Association of Chiefs of Police, forming an interesting exhibit and one not hitherto exploited at any Exposition. This section occupies the southeast corner of the building, and also the southeast entrance of the building.

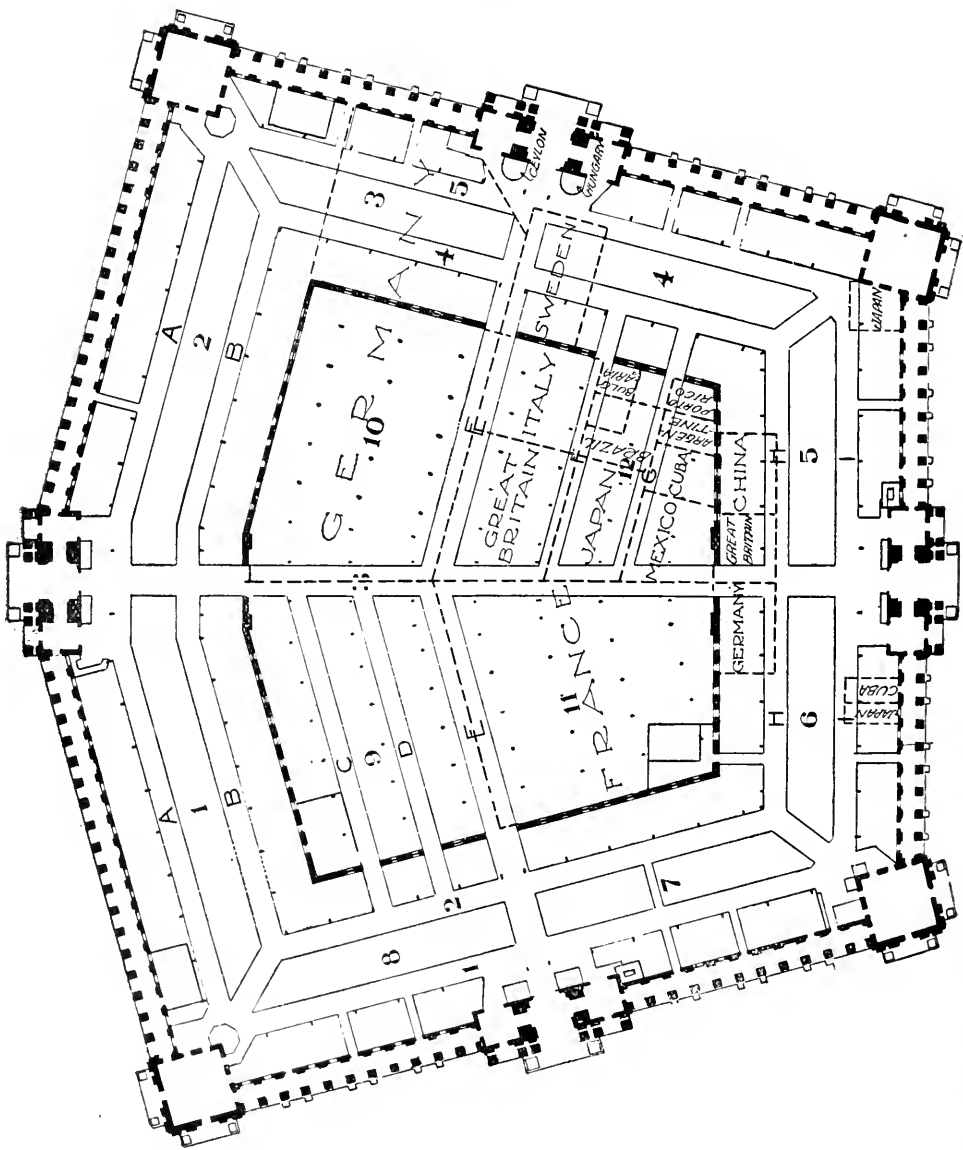

The section of Hygiene includes the work of state and municipal boards of health both in this country and abroad, and a testing hygiene laboratory in working operation demonstrating the necessity of such a laboratory in every town and city, and also illustrating the inexpensive nature of one adapted to meet all ordinary conditions.

How to Find an Exhibitor.

The Department of Social Economy occupies the South side of the Palace of Education and Social Economy. The principal exhibits of the United States are installed in blocks 5 and 6 on aisles H, I and 3. Many of the exhibits of foreign countries in Social Economy are installed in the spaces also used for the exhibits of the Department of Education. Over each block to which the Catalogue refers, will be found a large white and blue sign indicating the block number. The location of each state and foreign section is given, with block number and aisle boundaries.
